Changes in tailgating

Lumberjack tailgating is moved closer to the stadium, changing many students' game-day traditions.

IN AN ATTEMPT to create a more cohesive college football game-day atmosphere, SFA athletic administrators and a committee, including student representatives and alumni, made a mid-summer decision to take a more "back to the basics" approach to Lumberjack Alley.

"The sole purpose of tailgate is to support the Lumberjack Football team, and with the parking lot configuration around the stadium, the old Lumberjack Alley was far from promoting that," Assistant Athletic Director John Branch said. "We received overwhelming feedback about the old Lumberjack Alley being disconnected from the game. The conclusion was we basically had two competing events."

Major changes—including the relocation of tailgating activities to the Ag Pond area, moderations to the tailgating policies and the elimination of the title "Lumberjack Alley" from the event—went into effect the first football game of the season. The giveaways from local businesses and campus organizations that people had come to enjoy ended with a clause against solicitation in the new tailgating plan. The initial response from fans didn't appear to be a positive one as people, mainly students, began vocalizing their frustrations to the abrupt change.

"When I initially heard of what was going to happen to Lumberjack Alley, I was upset about the decision and its inconveniences to say the least," SFA graduate student and Delta Tau Delta member Mark Moon said. "I wasn't accustomed to anything else besides tailgating in the commuter lot. That's where it all started, so knowing that it would be changed seemed unreal."

Not all the feedback about the decision was negative. Some students and alumni voiced their support of the plan through different outlets, including postings on a Facebook page titled "Making SFA Gameday Experiences Great!!!" The page was created by SFA's Student Government Association President Sydni Mitchell in an attempt to gather opinions from the student body about the change before it was put into effect.

Among the postings on the page were the following:

- "This past year, tailgating was shameful. It used to be packed and jammed with people. There were probably only two decent tailgates this past season."
- "What about somehow keeping tailgating closer to the stadium? That way everyone tailgating will have easier, closer access."
- "I think it is important that free stuff is given out inside the stadium. Free stuff isn't effective if it doesn't actually bring students INSIDE the venue."

While the final response from fans about the new change was uncertain, administrators hoped that fans would eventually understand the reasoning behind the decision and support the new plan. And from the looks of attendance and participation at the first tailgating activity of the season, it seemed that hope for cooperation wouldn't be questionable.

"I'm glad after attending the first tailgate I can say that it was awesome since I was totally against it at first," Moon said. "The new way and location is completely better as far as space, participation opportunities and increased variety of activities possible during tailgating. For instance, now I can tell the story about how my fraternity brothers and I started the tailgating season off by canoeing in the Ag Pond, enjoying the scenery and the relaxed environment."

Welcome to the Piney Woods

New Freshman Corridor, Lumberjack Landing, the Student Success Center provide useful resources, home-away-from-home for first-year students.

FACULTY, STAFF AND STUDENTS escaped the heat and filed into the campus' newest residence hall, Lumberjack Landing, for the ribbon cutting ceremony in mid-July.

University president Dr. Baker Pattillo spoke about the amenities of Lumberjack Landing, which include a study lounge and study rooms on each floor, a keyless entry system, individually controlled thermostats in each room, a commons area and kitchen, a laundry room on the first floor and, perhaps most important, the Student Success Center.

The center, which houses four study halls, offers tutoring and counseling services tailored specifically for first-year students. To honor their continued support for strengthening the academic endeavors of the University, the facility has been named the Ed and Gwen Cole Student Success Center.

Sam Smith, director of student services, offered his thoughts on Lumberjack Landing.

"This is not just for freshmen," Smith said, "it is not just for the people who live here, but it's for the whole Freshman Corridor."

The Freshman Corridor to which Smith referred includes the new residence hall as well as Steen Hall, Hall 14 and Hall 16, all of which will house only first-year students.

Pattillo said he was extremely excited about Lumberjack Landing.

"If we can bring students in and get them involved right here where they live, through the Student Success Center and then in the study rooms and study lounges on each floor, I think it will make all the difference," Pattillo said.

The Student Success Center in the new freshman facility operates in the same way as the Academic Assistance and Resource Center in the Steen Library. It offers assistance with subjects like math, chemistry and biology along with student-instructed tutoring sessions, or SI groups, for various subjects. A subject that is in high demand in the Student Success Center is psychology. Shelby Smith, an SI leader for psychology and also a psychology major, expected between 8 to 10 students to attend her psychology SI section, but instead the sessions run between 8 and 20 students.

Terence Domio, a freshman and resident of Lumberjack Landing, says he enjoys the people most of all. He find his neighbors to be very congenial. As for the building itself, Domio is completely in love with it. He feels privileged to live here as opposed to the other residence halls. The main discomfort Domio has experienced is related to differences between him and his roommate, he said. Domio only wishes he had the luxury of residing in the same facility for his sophomore year.

Focusing on change

ODK Leadership Conference invites Arun Gandhi to speak on the continuation of his grandfather's work towards peace.

MORE THAN 200 students, faculty and community members attended the third annual ODK Leadership Conference in November in the BPSC. Participants heard speeches by both Arun Gandhi, grandson of Mahatma Gandhi, and Karen Walrond, author of "The Beauty of Different" and the popular blog, Chookooloonks, as well as attended breakout sessions, all in an effort to learn more about what they can do to bring change to their society.

Shelby Pearman, biology senior and ODK president, explained why the leadership society chose Gandhi to headline the conference.

"The Office of Student Affairs' theme this year is 'Be the Change,'" Pearman said. "We wanted to bring a more well-known speaker to attract as many people as possible to the conference."

Gandhi, who founded the M.K. Gandhi Institute for Nonviolence in New York, retold stories from his childhood, including lessons his famous grandfather taught him. He also explained the control and determination it takes for a person to live a non-violent life.

Walrond, an immigrant from Trinidad and Tobago, told the audience about her struggles to understand herself and her differences. She discussed five different steps each person can take to appreciate his or her own uniqueness.

"Your job is to help make the world a better place," the award-winning blogger said.

The 30-minute breakout sessions were facilitated by community members, faculty and student leaders. Themes ranged from money management to a student's legacy and various leadership styles.

"The breakout sessions went so well due to the fact we have many different speakers and many different topics," Pearman said.

John Fontenot, rehabilitation services senior and Leadership Conference coordinator, said the number of attendees exceeded expectation.

"This was a step above last year's (leadership conference,) and we are very proud of that fact," he said.

ODK members worked for months to plan the conference in order to give students an opportunity to enhance their leadership skills.

"We incorporated students, faculty and staff to make this conference an experience for everyone," Pearman explained. "We provided many different topics that many other conferences don't."

"The speakers discussed colorful situations and ideas about moving forward in peace and harmony with others," Fontenot said, "and that's what made me excited about this conference."

Dorian Nero, social work junior, attended the conference after hearing about past ODK conferences.

"I went because I felt it would be useful information to help me improve my leadership skills," Nero said. "I also felt that what I learned from the conference will help me improve various organizations and gain more confidence to put my leadership skills to use effectively."

After hearing Gandhi and Walrond speak, as well as participating in the breakout sessions, Nero already has ideas as to how he can create change and help students on campus.

"The idea that this conference might plant a seed in someone's head is exciting and a huge accomplishment for our organization," Fontenot said.

Painted in purple

Energetic student fan explains the enthusiasm for Lumberjack sports teams.

AXES BANGING, LUMBERJACK Marching Band playing and students cheering in a sea of their fellow Lumberjacks game after game. They saw it all—win, lose, rain or shine—and backed the Jacks throughout the year at more than just football games.

Although there is no longer an official student organization known as The Purple Haze, the students who sat in the Purple Haze section during sporting events had a lot of spirit. These students not only arrived early, cheered loudly and stayed late, but they also travelled the extra miles to away games and relentlessly stood on the front row. Some held signs of coaches' faces and SFA flags, while others used every last bit of their voices cheering on the Lumberjacks. Many students stayed until the end of the game—no matter what—to sing the Alma Mater with the team.

The new tailgate location just outside Homer Bryce Stadium didn't phase the Haze. It provided a way for students to get amped up for the game. They sported purple shirts around the Ag Pond, building enthusiasm, and then made their way into the stadium early to catch front row seats followed by others who filled in what remained of the Purple Haze section. Starting with game one, the Purple Haze section was full of loud, proud purple.

Throughout the year, students used a Purple Haze facebook group to update other students on the status of events. Players posted comments online to thank fans for their support, and fans praised players in the same way.

Whether wielded by a rowdy fan heckling opposing teams or one simply cheering spiritedly, axe handles and purple shirts were staples for the Purple Haze section. Students banged their axes against the Purple Haze sign, metal railing and bleachers in rhythm with songs played by the Lumberjack Marching Band while yelling encouragement for their team. In the midst of all the fun, some axe handles broke, but those fans never failed to find a replacement before the next game.

Students supporting the Lumberjacks from the Purple Haze section always seemed to have a good time. With their axes up, they tried to make an impression on opposing teams, their traveling fans, as well as everyone who saw photos of the group that truly bled purple.

Lumberjack, Ladyjack represent tradition

Cole Naylor and Sydney Thorne named Lumberjack and Ladyjack mascots for Fall 2011 - Spring 2012 semesters.

AS TWO OF the most recognizable people on campus, the Lumberjack and Ladyjack mascots bring spirit and tradition to the SFA campus. Cole Naylor, the Lumberjack, and Sydni Thorne, the Ladyjack, portrayed the SFA mascots for the 2011-2012 school year.

The tryout process included a cheer that the mascots performed with the cheerleaders. Candidates did not need to learn the motions, but they did need to show how they would participate with cheerleaders in a game-day situation.

Each mascot candidate created, choreographed and performed a unique two-minute skit. This skit incorporated crowd involvement and showed the candidate's personality. Candidates also went through an interview process with the spirit coordinator, spirit team coaches, spirit team members and student government officers.

During tryout weekend, the mascot candidate were expected to show their abilities to interact with current and potential cheer team members, as well as with crowd members at this event.

Naylor was not actively seeking the role when he started the tryout process.

"When it came to trying out I really didn't have to," Naylor said. "Some cheerleaders found me in the gym and asked me if I wanted to be the Lumberjack. But basically at the tryouts you just have to know history of the school, the fight song, be really outgoing; and then there's the physically fit side of it."

Involvement in the SFA spirit program is a major time commitment for both the fall and spring semesters. The year begins in June with the team's first practice and does not end until May, after the new mascots have been chosen.

Each team practices five days per week for two hours a day, and they have additional required study hall hours. The mascots are required to attend at least three weekly practices in the fall and all practices in the spring.

Both the Lumberjack and Ladyjack perform at all home football games. The Ladyjack also performs at home volleyball and women's basketball games. The Lumberjack performs at all home men's basketball games and travels to all athletic events.

The mascots also perform at various on-campus pep rallies, perform for various community and school events, participate in volunteer services and are requested to make many personal appearances during the year.

"I truly find it an honor to be able to represent such an amazing school with an amazing student body," Naylor said. "The fans, especially the students in the Purple Haze section, have made me feel welcome since day one."

No place like Homecoming

Gearing up for a week of events, SFA Homecoming continues its timeless traditions.

"THERE'S NO PLACE like home... There's no place like home... there's no place like home." Dorothy was right – there is no place like home, especially during SFA Homecoming. Students wrapped themselves up in purple and deck themselves out in SFA gear to get stoked for the big game on Saturday.

The traditions for SFA Homecoming run all week long through various charity events and annual activities such as the Driving Jack car bash, the Torchlight Parade, the Bonfire and Pep Rally, the parade downtown, the Duck Dash in Lumberjack Alley and tailgating before the game.

Even though Homecoming is a weeklong event, many organizations and campus offices begin a little early to get people excited and involved in events that happen during Homecoming.

Every year, organizations paint a board and display it along North Street to support the University and to let the community know about the Homecoming theme.

This year's theme was "There's no place like home," based on The Wizard of Oz's famous main character, Dorothy, who is taken away from her home and just wants to return. "There's No Place Like Home!" was meant to bring past, present and future Lumberjacks back to the place that some consider a second home.

The bonfire, which is traditionally built by Alpha Phi Omega, was unfortunately a light show this year due to the severe drought conditions. They still put the decorated outhouse on top of the light teepee, another well known SFA tradition. The Student Activities Association raises awareness about the bonfire by allowing student to trade in shirts from other universities (commonly referred to as "burn shirts," even though SAA donates them to the needy) for SFA "The Lumberjack Spirit Burns in my Soul" Shirts.

The Homecoming parade began early Saturday morning in downtown Nacogdoches. Many businesses downtown decorated their front windows and painted the town purple in celebration of the Homecoming festivities. Organizations with theme-decorated floats and The Boldest Sound from The Oldest Town, the Lumberjack Marching Band, paraded through the red brick streets of Nacogdoches, bringing spirit community-wide.

Another traditional Homecoming event is the forestry department's Sylvan Lumberjack Day. Lumberjack Day is a competition not sponsored by the forestry department, but by other organizations and students. SFA students come together and compete in lumberjack-type sports such as crosscut sawing.

A timeless SFA tradition is the annual Duck Dash. Businesses sponsor a duck to raise scholarship funds in honor of Homecoming. Students who hold winning ducks get prizes, and the rest of the funds and donations go into the SFA Alumni Association scholarship fund.

SFA crowns a new court, students name Marc Jackson and Stephanie Gibreath King and Queen.

DESPITE THE BURN ban keeping SFA from having a traditional bonfire, the competition was still heated for Homecoming Court. Seniors Stephanie Gilbreath and Marc Jackson were named Homecoming Queen and King in front of a packed crowd during halftime at the game against McNeese State University on Saturday.

"Winning is an awesome sendoff," Jackson said. "I've done so much since I've been at this University. I've grown in so many ways, and this is just the icing on the cake for me."

Prior to the halftime festivities, the Homecoming court, made up of representatives of organizations such as Driving Jacks, RHA, Panhellenic and Sigma Nu, worked to gain votes by campaigning and participating in a number of required events. They also earned points for their organization by attending events such as canned food drives, blood drives and the Traditions Race.

Homecoming was organized by the Traditions Council (TC), with senior Danielle Tharp in charge of Homecoming court elections.

"I've been in Traditions Council for six semesters," Tharp said. "I love TC, and I love traditions, and I love SFA. I felt like it was my turn to step up."

1930 marked the first year that Homecoming was observed at Stephen F. Austin. In the 81 years since, it has become steeped in tradition, involving all aspects of campus life.

"My main goal was to get a lot of organizations involved," Tharp said. "(I wanted to) bring up the school spirit, get us excited for the football game and also get back to the community."

In addition to organizing and running events, Traditions Council makes the final decision as to who appears on the Homecoming Court ballot.

"I look for passion for SFA, and love for SFA (then I look at nominees) and what their organization stands for," Tharp said.

Along with the King and Queen, the other winners were: Senior Duke and Duchess, Brett Bailey and Casey Furche; Junior Duke and Duchess, Tevin Sylvester and Lindsie Stafford; Sophomore Duke and Duchess, James Beeks and La Shae Jones, and Freshman Duke and Duchess, Hugo Felix and Candace Mackie.

Battle for the title

Three groups go head to head for the title of SFA's Best Dance Crew, resulting in Ill Movement taking home the cash prize.

THREE GROUPS PERFORMED in SAA's SFA's Best Dance Crew event for a $1,000 prize.

The event was a one-night competition that took place in the Baker Pattillo Student Center theatre. Each team competed in three rounds of dances.

For the first round, each team was required to use a prop in their dance. The second round was a '90s theme. The teams performed dances to music from the Fresh Prince of Bel Air, Janet Jackson and Michael Jackson. The final round was a free-style round.

The three teams that competed were Infamous, Ill Movement and Krumpin Slow. First place received $1,000, second place won $500 and third place won $250.

Rachel Sampeck, coordinator of the event, said she had seen the event done her freshman year and loved it so much she wanted to bring it back.

"It was just as fun this time," Sampeck said. "The crowd even got into it. They were getting on the stage and dancing while we were counting votes for the winners."

"I could really tell how hard each crew worked," Gabrielle Rambo, McKinney sophomore, said. "The crowd was really pumped, and the energy level was extremely high. I also loved the music and challenges the crews had to do. It was very entertaining."

At the end of the show, Jack Attack performed for the audience. Sampeck said she wants to do the event again in the fall.

"I'm so proud of all the groups," Sampeck said. "A lot of the success was because of the dedication they put into practicing their routines. I loved watching them and getting to know all of them."

Donlen Ruffin Jr., a member of the winning crew Ill Movement, said he decided to do the event because of how close he and his friends were to winning two years ago.

"We basically practiced as much as we could," Ruffin said, "sometimes with just two out of the five people. I can't give you a definite time, but I can say we practiced as much as we could."

"I think I can speak for everybody on my crew when I say we all enjoyed it," Ruffin said. The other members of Ill Movement were Brittany Wright, Brittany Frewin, Kris Best and Kesslaun 'Special K' Lewis.

Frightening fashion

RISQ organizes evil carnival-themed fashion and art show.

CHANNELING A CARNIVAL-HALLOWEEN theme with black and red drapery complete with faux cobwebs, creepy skulls, and hairy spiders, RISQ produced a fashion show on the evening of Nov. 26 in the Twilight Ballroom. Although RISQ does not generally advertise its events, the show was well attended.

The story, narrated through the models, was that of entering a Carnival and having your soul sacrificed after the puppet master takes control of you. The participants, or "puppets," modeled various feminine styles with six female models. Four male models were more accents rather than dolls like their female counterparts. The ladies wore evening wear such as gowns, dresses, and handmade tutus with coordinating corsets. The gentlemen wore winter wear from the trendy Express line such as wool coats, scarves, dark denim and sweaters. Goodwill and Rose Cottage were the other two places the outfits were created from.

Planning for the show started at the onset of the semester but suffered several setbacks such as body injuries due to intense choreography and individuals dropping out at the last minute, all of which changed the execution of the show and led to the rushed one-week preparation which was artistically improvised. The money made from the production went toward paying for the venue.

For an event that took a week to put together, the fashion show had a coherent pattern complete with a story line containing puppets and a puppet master, according to Jordan Lee, the president of the organization. Daniel Garcia played the role of the puppet master, while Adam Blain was the human who failed to morph into a puppet. Atalia Castro served as the make-up artist while Sarah Horner and Delicia Tejeda were the stylists behind the looks of the show. Jennifer Risher served as the designer of the frilly tutus and as a puppet stylist.

Tejeda, a stylist and model in the show, felt participating in such a production was more than just modeling clothes. She said she felt she was portraying a fierce alter ego and enjoyed every step of the way.

Blast from the past

Nacogdoches residents take part in cultural learning experience presented by Cultural Anthropology Club.

WITH THE BRIGHT sunshine to offset the strong gusts of winds, Pioneer Park was filled to capacity with kids of all ages to celebrate "A Blast from the Past," an annual festival celebrating archaeology and history in Nacogdoches. "Blast from the Past," an annual event hosted by the East Texas Heritage Center and the Stone Fort Museum, took place on Oct. 8, 2011, near downtown Nacogdoches. Various organizations representing archaeology, anthropology and gender studies were present to assist with the success of the event.

The event was primarily for the benefit of the kids to enable them to feel what children's toys were like 200 years ago according to Dr. Karol Chandler-Ezell, coordinator of the anthropology program. Dr. Leslie Cecil, director of the archaeology laboratory Department of Social & Cultural Analysis and Dr. Denice Millstein, the sponsor of the Gender Studies Club, have been coordinating this event for the past three years and helped with this year's event as well. To help the kids better relate, corn husks were used to create unique dolls that were similarly used by kids ages ago. Along with simulating an ancient play date, the event enlightened resident of Nacogdoches about various cultures of different groups.

Chandler-Ezell noted that each cultural tribe including the Europeans invaders played with dolls made from corn-husks. Contingent on the culture, some dolls were given faces while other dolls remained faceless. Dolls were usually decorated to express a particular culture. However simple corn husk dolls were, they were innovative and perceived to be the "poor kid's toy" according to Chandler-Ezell. After learning about authentic toys used decades ago, the kids were free to use their creativity to create dolls of their own.

Organizers of the event made sure to practice creating the dolls prior to the arrival of the children. Sixty-seven dolls were premade, with Chandler-Ezell single-handedly creating 50 dolls. Approximately 7 to 8 pounds of corn husks were used with each bag creating 20 dolls each. Along with creating a unique toy, a mock archaeological site was present for kids to dig through. The kids were sent home with a "bedtime story," a pamphlet filled with historical facts and more information about corn husk dolls.

Students shed light on current issues

Lumberjack Cultural Association introduces new world issues to their annual Tunnel of Oppression.

THIS YEAR, THE Lumberjack Cultural Association held its annual Tunnel of Oppression in the BPSC.

The Tunnel of Oppression is an interactive museum that spotlights different types of oppression through interactive theatre and multimedia presentations.

"In the past, the event has shed light on issues ranging from human trafficking to genocide and suicide," nursing junior Lindsey Mosley said.

"The tunnel is a great way for students to be exposed to what issues are happening in the world today," Mosley said.

"I (was) in the social networking room," she said. "My room in itself is controversial, but not as graphic and controversial as the female genital mutilation (FGM) room; this is an experience one should not miss."

Communications junior Kardal Coleman attends the tunnel event every year in search of knowledge.

"I go annually to see what new issues the world faces," Coleman said. "The tunnel is a reminder that these things are real, it gives a sense of refocus and makes me appreciate the freedoms of the United States and my being in college."

"The concepts in the rooms in the tunnel are deep," MCC director Dr. Terrence Frazier said. "The topics are not often discussed, and the issues that are often discussed, such as drunk driving and date rape, are done in a realistic and unique way to really reach the students.

"My favorite part of the tunnel is the concept of even having the tunnel. From the room about the Egyptian revolution to gay bashing to cyber bullying, students should see the wrongs and strive to make them better for themselves and as Lumberjacks."

A gift from an angel

Omicron Delta Kappa organizes annual Angel Tree, students help less fortunate children unwrap presents Christmas morning.

THIS YEAR, OMICRON Delta Kappa hosted its third Angel Tree to help provide gifts for children in the Nacogdoches community. The program runs side-by-side with programs such as The Salvation Army and many church organizations that help area children get gifts at Christmas. This year, the Angel Tree was located in the Involvement Center in the Student Center from mid-November through Dec. 2nd.

Meagan Reed, the ODK member who organized this year's event, said, "This year we raised more gifts and collected more children's names."

The program gathers information about children around Nacogdoches and what each child wants for Christmas. Children up to 17 years old were given gifts that would allow them to have a wonderful Christmas.

"I love the idea of the Angel Tree," Amy Wright, a member of Traditions Council, said, "because it gives people a chance to provide children who are less fortunate an exciting Christmas like they had when they were a child."

Students were encouraged to pick a child and look for the gift on that child's paper angel. Some organizations such as ODK and SAA adopted children as a group.

The Angel Tree program allows students to give back and to show that they care. The turnout this year shows that the ODK Angel Tree is growing, and the organization hopes for it to grow in coming years.

"This is a time for some who have something to give back and make others, who are less fortunate, have a wonderful Christmas," Wright said.

Students support Breast Cancer Awareness and education during the months of October and November.

THE NAACP ORGANIZATION at SFA hosted a breast cancer walk on Oct. 22 to benefit the Susan G. Komen Foundation for breast cancer. The Komen foundation is the most widely known breast cancer organization in the United States.

"I haven't seen SFA actually hold a walk for breast cancer before," said Abaeze Anene, the health chair for the NAACP.

The breast cancer walk at SFA had approximately 30 participants who participated in the walk. All of the walkers made their way from the Baker Pattillo student center to the tennis courts and then the East College Cafeteria and ended back at the student center. The walk was significant to anyone who has had breast cancer or for anyone who knows someone who has dealt with breast cancer. After the walk was over, each person released a balloon representing either their own struggle with breast cancer or a person they know who has suffered from it.

More than $300 was raised for the walk. All of the proceeds went to the Susan G. Komen Foundation to help find a cure for breast cancer. Any funds raised by any walk or fund-raiser help to find a cure, and the NAACP did a wonderful job of collecting funds for the Komen Foundation.

The walk was a great success and, even though the walk is over, the NAACP still wants everyone to support the cure for breast cancer. " I hope people continue praying for those with breast cancer," Anene said.

Holiday extravaganza

Residence Hall Association sponsors annual tree lighting ceremony, with holiday-themed activities for students and children.

RESIDENCE HALL ASSOCIATION members held their annual Holiday Extravaganza on Nov. 29 outside the Austin Building.

"It was a community-wide celebratory kick off to the holiday season where the campus lights are turned on across campus," program coordinator Gennie Lynn said.

Along with cookies and hot cocoa, the event begins with the SFA Pep Band performing holiday music.

As the crowd gathered, RHA president Alonzo Brooks gave a brief greeting and introduced the various bands and choirs performing that night. University president Dr. Baker Pattillo then introduced Santa and Mrs. Clause before the trees were lit and the official events began.

The Holiday Extravaganza has been a long-standing holiday staple on campus and in the community, and RHA plans to continue this tradition.

"It increases student involvement, and community involvement," Lynn said. "It's open to all SFA students, staff and faculty, as well as the Nacogdoches community."

Zip lining through the pines

Pine Log sports editor overcomes initial fear to take her trip down the course at Zip Nac with newspaper editorial staff.

A FIRST-PERSON ACCOUNT—

I HAVE A tendency to dive into things without fully thinking them through.

So, when the topic of zip lining came up among The Pine Log editors, in typical Stephanie fashion I jumped at the opportunity to try something new. In the midst of the excitement, what I did not consider was my extreme fear of heights.

Simply climbing the 34-foot rock wall in the Rec Center had been a huge challenge for me, and now I was supposed to fly through the sky on a 300-foot-long rope? You have got to be kidding me.

I almost backed out when I saw the course, but then I remembered why I was so excited in the first place. Going to Zip Nac was a chance to bond with my co-workers. We all cover different news beats and rarely get to interact beyond publication nights two times a week. I knew I could never get this moment back.

I learned that out of six editors, I am the only one with a height anxiety. At least, the only one who would admit it.

"I'm really excited," opinions editor Stephanie Ballard said on video right before the first line.

I, on the other hand, told the camera that I didn't think people should be allowed to do this. Ever.

As my turn approached, I was shaking and sweating in a terrified state of panic. But no matter how scared, I was determined not to give up. The Pine Log editors were a team on a mission, and I was not going to let them down.

Each line was easier than the last, and before I knew it I had made it through the course successfully. I even had a little bit of fun when I stopped trying to steer and just held on to the rope. Mission Zip Nac accomplished.

Students give back to community

KSAU radio station, student volunteers give back to the community by raising funds for the 40th annual Empty Stocking Fund

BEGINNING THE FIRST of December, students collected money in the parking lot of the Nacogdoches Walmart store to help the Nacogdoches County Child Welfare Board raise funds for its 40th annual Empty Stocking Fund project.

SFA students manned tents 24 hours a day in the parking lot through 6 p.m. Saturday Dec. 3. Volunteers included members of the KSAU radio staff as well as students from other campus groups and classes.

The Empty Stocking Fund drive is held during the first three days of December each year. Toys and donations are accepted during that time for children in need and are distributed before Christmas to the families.

KSAU adviser Sherry Williford, communication instructor, is a member of the Child Welfare Board and coordinates KSAU efforts to help the organization.

"We're always looking for volunteers," Williford said.

The Empty Stocking Fund is a national mission to empower parents and guardians of children living at or below the poverty level in communities throughout the country by providing them with an opportunity to give their children gifts at Christmas time. Last year, the Nacogdoches project served more than 1,500 children, according to Williford.

KSAU, the campus radio station, is completely run by students with a faculty adviser and provides an alternative to other music stations in the Nacogdoches and Lufkin area.

Williford urges people to listen to KSAU because it is different than other area stations.

"Since we are a non-commercial station, we are obligated to provide an alternative to the community," she said. "For example, there are a lot of country stations around here and because of that, we will never play country, because that is not providing an alternative. Also, being non-commercial, we are not worried about reaching a certain audience to sell advertisements, and because of that, we can be more eclectic to hopefully satisfy more groups of people."

Giants defeat the Patriots

Students gather in the BPSC movie theatre to watch Super Bowl XLVI, witnessing the defeat of the Patriots.

ON SUPER BOWL Sunday, the SFA Student Activities Association held a Super Bowl watching party at the Baker Patillo Student Center movie theater. This allowed students to watch another epic game of the Giants vs. the Patriots.

After going 9-7 in the regular season, Eli Manning seemed determined to lead the Giants to yet another Super Bowl victory against the favored New England Patriots.

This years' game came down a big play. Eli Manning heaved a clutch, fourth quarter throw down the sideline to a tiptoeing Mario Manningham, who came up huge in the biggest game of his career.

Manningham wasn't the only clutch target for the younger Manning, however; Hakeem Nicks, who had nothing to do with the win four years ago, had 10 receptions for 109 yards and easily could have been named Super Bowl MVP.

In fact, there was much discussion at the Super Bowl watching party that Nicks should have been deemed Super Bowl MVP. He would have been the first wide receiver in NFL History to win MVP in his first Super Bowl.

The defensive line of the New York Giants aided Eli and the offense down the stretch.

On third down and 10 from their own 20-yard line, Tom Brady attempted to create some comeback magic and defeat the Giants. But Justin Tuck split the offensive line of the Patriots and sacked Brady for a six-yard loss.

Brady would come back on fourth and 16 to complete a pass for a first down, but because Tuck came up with the sack the play before, the Patriots were forced to burn a timeout, thus burning their chances to come out Super Bowl champions.

There was celebration from some and agony from others as the Patriots fans from the SAA-held event were sent back home without the enjoyment of another Super Bowl win.

This event's success will carry over as many SAA members plan to hold this event again next year.

BELOW Students proudly participated in cleaning the entire SFA campus, as well as Nacogdoches parks and community projects.

'Renewing, reflecting, leaving a legacy'

Students, faculty work together to honor Martin Luther King, Jr., clean up campus, beautify Nacogdoches community.

ON JANUARY 16, 160 students and faculty members participated in the annual MLK Day of Service. They picked up trash around Nacogdoches and painted objects at different recreational facilities.

This was the 26th year for the program on campus, and it included more than 160 participants.

"I'm really excited to see our program grow," Jamie Bouldin, assistant director for student life, said.

A total of 12 parks and recreational facilities were cleaned, 15 projects were completed and the entire campus was cleaned. In the end, the participants collected a total of 25 bags of trash.

At the end of the service day, students and faculty members gathered for a ceremony in the Twilight Ballroom, where they relaxed and reflected on their day's work.

"To me, this day is about participating even though we are not from here," junior Christian Donald said. "We are students, and it feels good to give back to our community by helping to keep it clean. It's a wonderful tradition."

Also at the ceremony, there were drawings for $50 book scholarships. The winners of the raffle were freshman Isis Waltes and freshman Canisha Hill.

The keynote speaker of the ceremony was the director of the Multicultural Center, Dr. Terrance Frazier.

"Cleaning the campus was a bonus," Frazier said. "We had so many participants, we were able to do more than what we had intended."

The event was hosted by the multicultural affairs program, along with the Corporation for National and Community Service.

This year's motto was, "Renewing, reflecting, leaving a legacy" and was dedicated to community service.

"To me, participating in this day is a really great way for me to kick off the new year and the new semester," sophomore Sara Zavorka said.

To reward the hard work of the students, a few staff members from the Alternative Spring Break program gave away free MLK t-shirts and purple bandanas. Participants were also provided with a free lunch and water throughout the day.

A month of history

In honor of Black History Month, NAACP hosted its annual gala honoring activist, writer Kevin Powell.

THIS YEAR'S KICK-OFF to Black History Month was marked by the third annual NAACP Gala on Feb. 9.

Since its founding date in 1909, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been dedicated to ensuring the political, educational, social and economic equality of rights for all persons and to eliminate race-based discrimination.

The SFA chapter hosted a number of events throughout the week to help the student community embrace a culture rich in history.

Events included free HIV testing, a knowledge bowl and a higher learning movie night.

Kevin Powell, an activist, writer and entrepreneur, was the guest speak of the night. He spoke about the importance of knowing your identity.

"It doesn't matter what race you came from," Powell said, "you need to know who are you."

The message he gave to the audience that night was that being able to know who you are will facilitate the way to moving forward, leading to success.

Since he was a first-generation college student, Powell knows how difficult it can be to be a student, but he mentioned that college should not be taken for granted because it is there when one has the time and flexibility to do what one chooses. He emphasized that it is important to "read, study and travel" because gaining knowledge from different places is beneficial after graduation.

Powell also said everyone should embrace all cultures in America.

Lumberjack Marching Band

Talents of these musicians push boundaries past just playing a tune by working hard, mastering the march.

THE LUMBERJACK MARCHING Band is the "boldest sound from the oldest town." In order to produce such bold sounds however, a lot of practice is required.

Marching band's season begins with a week-long camp before the start of fall classes. They begin their days in the commuter parking lot at 8 a.m. and are often not finished until around 8 p.m.

"Band camp was a lot of work," freshman LMB member Ryan Chambers said. "I expected it to be, but towards the end of the week I really didn't feel like getting out of bed for an 8 a.m. class."

When fall classes begin, LMB practiced Monday through Thursday from 4 to 5:30 outside, followed by a two-hour rehearsal at 8 or 9 a.m. Saturday morning.

"Having a rehearsal in the afternoons is the easy part," LMB member Andie Rivera said. "The hard part is waking up on time for Saturday morning rehearsals. It never looks good when you're late."

The band also performs both styles of marching— military for their pregame and corps for the half-time show. Typically, students come from a background of either military or corps, never both, so having to learn both styles proves to be a difficult task for some students.

"Learning to march military is not easy," LMB member Sara Zavorka said. "After so many years (in high school) of marching corps, my muscles often go into memory mode and march corps. It takes a lot of practice."

Not only is the marching band required to memorize where to march on the field, but they also have to memorize their music. In order to prove that the music is memorized, they have tests.

Throughout the semester, the marching band plays anywhere from two to three half-time shows, with each show consisting of typically six to eight songs.

"I love the music that we play," LMB member Danny Lopez said. "It's always fun."

LMB also goes to every away football game, which means getting on buses early in the morning and arriving back home around 2 a.m. after the game.

The marching band also performs in multiple school and community parades and exhibition performances for high school competitions.

Clash of the couples

SAA hosts Couples Wars, a competition where couples go head to head in a who-knows-who challenge.

THE STUDENT ACTIVITIES Association hosted an event called "Couples Wars" in the Twilight Ballroom of the Baker Pattillo Student Center.

Jasmine Russell, sophomore and member of SAA, was in charge of this event. "I know people are in need of money in college so I thought it would help out college couples by giving them a chance to win a free romantic dinner for Valentine's Day."

The event was some healthy competition between four couples. The couples were competing for a prize of a $50 gift certificate to Auntie Pastas.

Couples Wars is a game that tests how well each couple knows the person they are with. The couples were in different parts of their relationship and volunteered to be part of the war.

Each couple was set up on stage in chairs facing back to back with their significant other. The couples were given a white-board and were asked many different questions. There were four different rounds, each consisting of questions that became more complex as the war went on.

One person, say the girlfriend, was handed the white-board and asked a question about their boyfriend. When the couples were ready, the board was shown to the audience while the boyfriend answered with no knowledge of what was written down.

After each round the judges reveled their scores. They judged based on the amount of time it took for the answer to be written down and on how well the written answer compared to what the other person's answer was.

The audience seemed to be enjoying themselves and reacted very well to each of the responses from the couples. There were many "awe's" when a boyfriend knew, in detail, the answer to a challenging/personal question and vice versa.

All four couples knew their significant other pretty well and did not seem to have much of a challenge with remembering anything from their favorite color to the place where they shared their first kiss.

However, in the end only one couple could win the certificates to a romantic, free dinner. When it came down to the final rounds two couples, tied for the prize, went head to head in a "who knows who" better showdown.

The final two couples were Jazmine, freshman, and Lawrence, junior, and Lacy and Elias, both freshman.

Jazmine and Lawrence began dating officially over Christmas break 2011. Lacy and Elias have been together for six years, meeting in the sixth grade.

The final questions were challenging, getting more in depth with how well the couples really knew each other.

In the end Jazmine and Lawrence came out on top, winning by a single point. The tie-breaking question was, "What is his favorite song?" The crowed was upset to see that Lacy and Elias were not given another chance considering Lacy knew the band but not the exact title of the song.

The judges stayed fair, and because Jazmine knew the title to the song they won the final round and broke the tie.

For a couple that has only been together for such a short amount of time, Jazmine and Lawrence really knew the person they were with. "We thought it would be fun; I am glad we won," said Jazmine.

The runner-up couple, and longest relationship by far, did not leave empty handed. Lacy and Elias were given a movie and dinner movie package, complete with the movie "Date Night," chocolates and dinner to be made at home for a date night of their own.

Mentor Ring tradition carried on

In celebration of their accomplishments, upperclassmen on their way to graduation get a chance to take the Big Dip.

STUDENTS, ALUMNI AND family members crowded in the Grand Ballroom on the second floor of the Baker Pattillo Student Center this semester for the "Big Dip" ceremony. This fall semester's ceremony was on Dec. 5, the week before Dead Week.

Over 100 students packed into the ballroom and received their Mentor Rings. The tradition goes that the students receiving the ring do the "Go Jacks" hand symbol and dip their hand into thick purple dye. Some students described the dip as "cold and slimy," but senior English and French major Ethan Fathree described it as "cold, but other than that, the dye felt like water."

The "Big Dip" ceremony tradition dates back to 2001. In 2003, the event was institutionalized to be held on Friday of "Dead Week," which is the week before final exams of each fall and spring semester.

Although always heavily attended, the largest ring ceremony to date occurred in December 2006 when 191 students dipped their hands.

The "Big Dip" refers to being "dipped in pride" before students receive their Mentor Ring. When the presentation ceremony concept originated in 2001, members of the Student Foundation Association wanted to create a unique ritual for students to share before getting their rings.

The class rings, which are produced by Balfour, are reflective of the SFA experience. Fathree talks about his ring, describing it as "awesome."

The SFA class ring is called the Mentor Ring because the SFA Alumni Association assigns an alumnus to each undergraduate to help mentor them through their last months of school. The mentoring process is optional but definitely recommended.

The ceremony consists of students walking across a stage in front of the crowd towards the SFA president, Dr. Baker Pattillo. He shakes everyone's hands after they dip their "Go Jacks" hand signs in the purple dye.

The dye leaves students' hands stained purple and leaves them with the purple SFA pride that lasts a lifetime. Fathree said "Walking across the stage was strange, but it was like taking the first steps towards graduation."

At the end of the ceremony, everyone sings the SFA school song, leaving the ceremony with a sense of pride and having taken the first steps towards a new beginning.

Flowers of hope

Students spread the message of suicide prevention by planting pinwheels as flowers in a garden of hope.

ON NOV. 29 and 30, students in several SFA 101 classes presented the Garden of Hope, an event which took place outside of the BPSC plaza, in order to raise students' awareness of suicide and ways in which it can be prevented. While Jill Milem, assistant director of counseling services, and Binta Brown, counselor, hosted the event with their SFA 101 students, several other campus departments collaborated to make it a possibility. Other SFA 101 students were encouraged to help participate in the volunteer work as well.

Students who stopped to see the garden made paper windmills out of construction paper and other items and wrote positive words of encouragement on each section of the windmill. Many students wrote things such as "life is beautiful" or "you are worth living for." Some students also dedicated their windmills to family and friends who passed away by means of suicide. Once the windmills were made, they were planted in the ground across from the Chemistry Building. Students were also given candy and Ask-A-Jack buttons to help spread awareness.

While many students only made windmills, they were also encouraged to ask questions about suicide. "We encouraged students to sign up for counseling if they were facing an issue with which we could be helpful," Milem said. "Many times, students have a friend who has considered suicide. Counseling may provide these students with a way to help people at risk, which can be helpful and empowering to students faced with this type of situation."

Students also learned about the QPR (Question, Persuade and Refer) program in which both Milem and Brown are certified. The QPR program helps those who may encounter someone suffering through depression and having thoughts of suicide. Many students registered for the QPR program and signed up for counseling throughout the event.

This was the first year the Garden of Hope event was presented to faculty, students and the community. Due to the perceived success and positive effect it had on many people, it is expected to become a yearly event on campus.

Cindy Bahena, SFA freshman and participating SFA 101 student, said, "There were so many people who signed up for counseling, just in one day. It was a very eye-opening experience."

LEFT Gathered around tables, students make paper pinwheels to spread awareness of suicide prevention. The pinwheels displayed hand written words of encouragement to help troubled young adults see the good in their lives.

BELOW Students wrote motivating messages such as "life is beautiful," "caring saves lives," and "there's always a way."

What lies ahead

After Fall 2011 Graduation, one student reflects on her graduation day experience.

AS I SAT in the cold coliseum waiting for my turn to walk the stage, I thought about what it took to get here in this moment, wearing a cap and gown. I thought about the days when it seemed like I would never get here. The late nights running on adrenaline and coffee, the hard work, the parties and new friends. I thought about leaving home for the first time and my decision to come to this place, the oldest town in Texas.

President Baker Pattillo said that only about 22 percent of Americans have a bachelor's degree, and I felt proud. I looked up in the crowd to find my family one last time before I got in line. The announcer called my name, and just like that, I was a college graduate.

The sense of accomplishment one feels after that moment is great. I remember saying, "I can't wait to put this on my resume. I have a bachelor's degree!"

A few days after the high of graduation, an intense reality came over me. I was no longer safe in the comfort zone in between childhood and adulthood. I would have to make some serious decisions now.

In times of change, it helps to look to our peers for comfort in knowing that we're not alone. It is now that we must decide who we want to be as opposed to how others see us. Will we follow our dreams or comply with the dreams of others? Will we continue to ask questions and search for life's purpose? Will we stay strong through the trials and tests?

As scary as these times can be, I find peace in knowing only I hold the key to my future. Graduating proved I could succeed, and all I know now is that I want to reach for the ceiling of my potential until I touch it.

RIGHT Launching the football while still in the pocket, Brady Attaway attempts to make a well exectuted pass. After receiving much criticism at the beginning of the year, Attaway helped bring SFA to a five-game winning streak. This was Attaway's first years as starting quarterback.

New quarterback pulls team together

Brady Attaway braves criticism, pulls team into a five-game winning streak to complete the season.

REPLACING A SCHOOL'S all-time great is never an easy task. Brady Attaway figured that out the hard way this past season.

Attaway came out of high school as a highly regarded prospect. Playing high school ball at Whitehouse in east Texas, he was a three-year letterman and ended his career ranked ninth all-time in touchdown passes, seventh in passing yards, third in passing attempts and fourth in career pass completions in Texas High School Football history.

After taking over the starting quarterback position from Walter Payton Award-winning quarterback Jeremy Moses, the sophomore experienced some growing pains. The Lumberjacks opened the season with a route of McMurray State 82-6 but proceeded to lose five straight games to drop their record to 1-5.

After those early struggles, and after getting blasted by Sam Houston State 45-10 the game before, the Attaway-led offense exploded against Nicholls on the road. The sophomore quarterback threw for 265 yards and a career-high four touchdowns in the first half alone and finished the game with seven touchdown passes total, just one touchdown short of the school record.

"We need to come together as a team like we did the last five games," Attaway said. "If we stay together as a team like we did this year, we will be really good moving forward."

Attaway finished the year with 3,181 passing yards, eighth-best in the entire nation, and finished with 27 touchdowns, fifth-best in all-time school history.

After facing great criticism at the start of the year, that criticism seemed to fade away after Attaway led the Lumberjacks to that five-game winning streak to close the season.

Piney Woods shows who bleeds purple

Lumberjacks support their team through thick and thin, whether they conquer or fall. Fans pack the stands for round two at Reliant Stadium.

THE SFA LUMBERJACKS took on the Sam Houston Bearkats Oct. 8 at Reliant Stadium for the Battle of the Piney Woods.

Prior to the game, fans tailgated in the parking lot, where both alumni and current students enjoyed barbecue, yard games and sharing stories about their SFA experiences.

Rebecca Newman, senior hospitality major, said, "It is a sea of purple shirts when you're tailgating at the Piney Woods game."

That same wave rolled into the stadium, colliding with an orange opposition. Before and during the game, Lumberjack fans grabbed concessions and last-minute SFA gear. The bustle of anticipation was felt in all parts of the stadium. "I had seats on the fifth row where you could see all the action," Brianna Spaulding, junior interior design major, said. "I went with my family, and it was very cool sitting so close to the field with all the enthusiastic SFA fans around us."

The game began with loud cheers and spirit. At halftime, Sam Houston was ahead, 10-3, but the crowd remained hopeful. The SFA Lumberjack Marching Band took the field, allowing the spirited fans, especially those in the Purple Haze section, to resuscitate their vocal chords.

Because of the score, many Lumberjack fans decided to leave the stadium in the third quarter. With the sea of purple quickly drying up, the chants grew softer and the cheers farther apart. Those who truly bled purple stayed behind to cheer on the Lumberjacks.

"The score doesn't matter as much as the way you play and the heart you put into it. The same goes for the fans. As long as the boys on the field are playing hard, their fans should cheer just as hard," Luisa Farmer, sophomore history major, said.

The Lumberjacks lost to the Bearkats 45 to 10. The tired players faced their adoring fans as the band played the school song. Win or lose, SFA students backed their Jacks.

LEFT Struggling to stay upright with a Bearkat gripping his leg, Cordell Roberson tries to make his way to the end zone. During the game, Roberson scored the one touchdown for SFA and rushed 79 yards. Roberson is one of the top big-play threats in the nation and also an All-American selection. Last season he lead the nation with 16 touchdown receptions.

BELOW The Lumberjacks face the Bearkats head on, ready to show their fans what "bleeding purple" really means. Reliant Stadium was full of axes the evening of Oct. 8. Before the game even started, team spirit was high, and students were on edge. Everyone donned a purple T-shirt, talked trash about the Bearkats and enjoyed good food.

ABOVE Tammara Marion attempts to keep the ball in her possession against her opponents. Marion led the Ladyjacks offensively against the A&M Islanders. She scored a game high 20 points, over half of which were scored in the second half when SFA was behind.

TOP RIGHT Freshman center Porsha Roberts goes up for a jump shot. Though Roberts is a freshman, she has matched records made by basketball members from the past. In the match against McNeese State, Roberts posted eight blocks, tying a record made in 2003.

BOTTOM RIGHT Brittney Matthew takes positon as point guard and dribbles down the court as Tierany Henderson jogs ahead. Since being named a starter in the match against the Islanders, Matthew has averaged at least 10 points every game. Henderson and Matthew are both new to the Ladyjack team.

Jacks take on Aggies for another round

Students, community support Lumbjack Basketball through second loss to Aggies. Strong finish proves more important than 55-42 loss.

TAKING ON THE season, Lumberjack Basketball won consecutively against UTEP and Wiley College. Their next stop was Dec. 3 in College Station at the Reed Arena, where they played the Texas A&M Aggies, a nationally ranked team. Unfortunately, the Lumberjacks lost 55-42. Although the Jacks did not come out on top, they accepted the defeat and continued to move forward in the season.

Although the Aggies contest was not a conference game, the teams have played against each other as early as the 1970s, where the Lumberjacks played and defeated the Aggies with a score of 89-82 in the 71-72 season.

"The game really does mean a lot to us. It did not matter that we lost but that we finished strong," Lumberjack shooting guard Antonio Bostic said.

Although the Jacks were defeated, SFA spirit was still in the air. Students, faculty and community members of all ages continued to raise their "Axe 'em Jacks"signs in support as the pep band played triumphantly throughout the game.

"I think it's imperative that we support our team, no matter the circumstances. If everyone were to lose faith in our team, it would affect their concentration. I believe that the more we support, the better our team feels," pep band member Sara Zavorka said.

Center Jereal Scott scored 12 points. Bostic made 10. Forward Taylor Smith made 4 points in free throws and then scored with a dunk. Forward Jacob Parker made one jump shot. Point guard Hal Bateman scored two free throws, a jump shot and one dunk. Forward Jonathan King made two free throws. Point guard Darius Gardner scored 3 points.

During his time as head coach, Danny Kaspar has brought the Lumberjacks to victory for more than 200 games. In Lumberjack Basketball coach history, Kaspar is ranked third in the most wins.

Bringing home another victory

Lumberjack football team makes statement with 37-17 victory over McNeese State University at Homecoming.

The Lumberjacks routed the Cowboys of McNeese State 37-17 in SFA's Homecoming game at Homer Bryce Stadium, bringing the Jacks' record to 3-5 on the year. The contest displayed SFA's defensive talent, showcasing junior and Baylor transfer Willie Jefferson who lead the defensive charge with four and a half sacks as the Jacks racked up nine sacks total on the day.

Sophomore starting quarterback Brady Attaway led SFA to an opening drive touchdown and looked poised to continue the team's turnaround on the season that started 1-5. But the Cowboys' defense stepped up and held the Lumberjacks scoreless for the next few possessions, and McNeese capitalized scoring 17 straight points to take the lead 17-7.

Attaway got the train rolling again in the third quarter when he connected with Cordell Roberson for Roberson's sixth touchdown of the season. This reception brought Roberson just seven shy of SFA's all-time record in touchdown catches.

The Jacks didn't stop there as they scored 30 unanswered points to end the game, and the Cowboys were sent packing. Attaway completed 31 passes for 248 and a score while the running backs for the Jacks exploded. Junior Jeremy Barnes led the team in rushing with 68 yards on 14 carries along with the addition of freshman Fred Ford's 67 yards on 12 carries. All in all, the Jacks racked up 187 yards on 42 carries to the Cowboys' 30 yards total and only 224 yards of total offense.

Junior Jordan Aubrey led the team with 12 tackles and Ryan Epperson added another 10 tackles including an interception that he returned 68 yards to set up an important Lumberjack touchdown.

The end of the game was all Jacks, and the Cowboys seemed to have checked out of the contest, being held scoreless for the remaining 44:09 of the game.

After the Homecoming win against McNeese, SFA won out, and the Lumberjacks ended the season at 6-5, winning five straight after falling to 1-5 midway through the season.

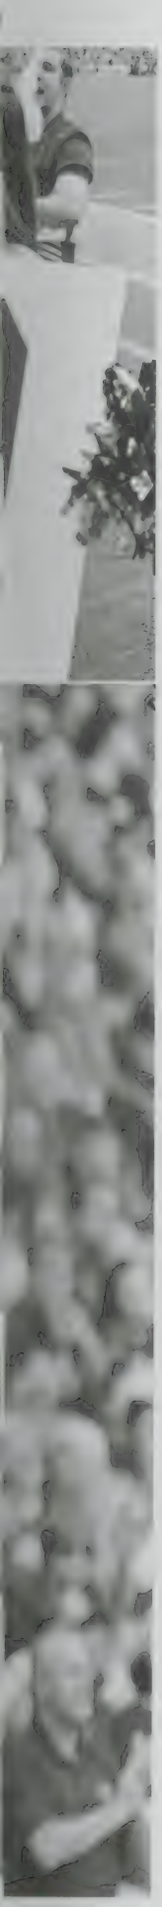
FAR RIGHT Lauren Papanos holds a "GO" sign to support the players taking the field during the Battle of the Piney Woods game.

BELOW With their backs against a sea of purple, Whitney Hultquist and Lauren Kyler cheer for the Lumberjacks. "I believe the responsibility of a cheerleader is to help energize the fans and encourage the team, no matter the score," Kyler said. "We are there to support the football players, and we have a great time doing it."



"Cheering pushes me to my limits physically and mentally, but also give me a great family, full of friends with amazing memories to share."
— Kacie Carpenter

Cheerleading is part of tradition

Cheerleading teams use hard work, dedication to pump up the crowd. Cheerleaders believe performance and spirit can affect game.

EVERY FOOTBALL GAME has one component that is always the same — the cheerleaders. Most of the time, cheerleading is questioned as a sport altogether; however, if you spent any amount of time talking to a collegiate cheerleader, you would realize that cheerleading is as much a sport as soccer, basketball or football.

"We treat cheering as a sport," SFA cheerleader Muindria White said. "We come in with an open mind and push ourselves to achieve the impossible."

Cheerleaders feel they have a role at games and that their performance may ultimately affect the outcome of the game. Small Coed cheerleader Kacie Carpenter believes that the role of a cheerleader is to get the crowd involved and excited about the game and to pump up their players and drive them to win.

"We do exactly what our name says and that is to lead the crowd and have fun," White said. "I think we do affect the game. When we're on the sidelines cheering, we have the best seats in the house, and we grow to love the sport. We get involved, thus getting the crowd more pumped."

If you ask an SFA cheerleader what it means to them to cheer here at SFA, you will truly get a sense of how passionate these students are about this program and how dedicated they are to winning national titles, of which SFA Cheer currently possesses 14.

"Being an SFA cheerleader means more than just cheering at games and showing up to events, it is dedicating myself to a tradition of champions," White said.

The team's sense of camaraderie reveals a secret to the winning tradition of SFA cheer.

First-year SFA cheerleader Luke Schuster said, "It is amazing to get the opportunity to be a part of such a prestigious program. Ever since my senior year, I've dreamt about being on this team, and it's just been a wonderful opportunity so far."

Junior cheerleader Jarred Katter agrees.

"Being an SFA cheerleader means fulfilling a dream I've had since 9th grade," he said. "It's not just about stunting and tumbling; it's about seeing the results of all of the hard work and effort to become a part of this great program."

ABOVE The Ladyjack Bowling team poses for a group picture after a meet. The team started fresh this year with a new coach, Amber Lemke. Lemke has already signed one new bowler for 2012, and she hopes the new addition will help the Ladyjacks continue to rise in national rank. At the begining of the 2011-2012 season, the team was ranked thirteenth in the nation.

LEFT Nicole Parkhurst smoothly releases the ball during the Sam Houston Kat Clash. Parkhurst has been a leading competitor this season, finishing sixth overall. She averaged 218 in her five matches, leading the team.

FAR LEFT Waiting for her turn, Madison Williams judges the pin setup before stepping up to the line. Williams was a fierce competitor during the Fairleigh Dickinson University Jamboree in New Jersey. She finished 23rd overall and helped the Ladyjacks earn a sixth-place win with a 212 in the third match.

Cross Country star makes history

Lauren Smith makes history with a championship win, but her love for running, hard work of her teammates is what really motivates her.

Lauren Smith is not your typical, run of the mill athlete. She is, for lack of a better term, a beast.

In her high school career at Brazoswood High School, she medaled three times at the state cross country championships and won the Class 5A title in 2007. She also qualified for the Footlocker National Championships in both her 2007 and 2008 campaigns. She also holds high school records in the 1,600, 3,200 and 5,000 meters.

"I liked running at a young age," Smith said. "In intermediate school I did sprinting events, and one day I decided to run a 5k race and I actually did pretty well."

Doing pretty well is an understatement. As a freshman, Smith ran for the University of Arizona and helped the team climb to no. 17 in the national rankings. In the Pac 10 Championships, she was 27th overall and sixth-best among conference freshman.

Now, Smith is the top cross-country runner at SFA and has her hopes high.

"I want to definitely get top 25 and try to qualify for the NCAAs," Smith said. "I think definitely if I have as good a race as I did at conference, I can do really well. It just comes down whether I have a good race or a bad race."

Smith has had many more good races than bad and was named Southland Conference Women's Cross Country Athlete of the Year after her dominant performance at the Southland Conference Cross Country Championships in which she ran her 6-kilometer race in 20:57.3—45 seconds ahead of the second place finisher. But it's not just her accomplishments and accolades that keep her motivated.

"I see how much work (my teammate) put in, and see how much I'm putting in and whenever we're all working;" Smith said. "It's just something that makes you want to go out and do it because you're not doing it all by yourself. (We're) doing everything together."

ABOVE The Ladyjack Cross Country team starts off at the sound of the gun at the regional cross country meet in Waco. The Women's Cross Country team placed third out of the Southland Conference members there, and ninth overall in the meet. The Ladyjacks ran an exceptionally good season, breaking records and placing high.

RIGHT The Lumberjack Cross Country team gets a quick start at the Baylor course. At the conference meet in the Piney Woods, the men's team took fourth overall, just nine points shy of third place. The Men's Cross Country team had a tight season, usually bunching all their finishes together. At the conference meet, four runners placed in the top 21, and seven in the top 40. The men earned a number 10 ranking for the second year in a row in the South Central region.

TOP The Ladyjack Golf team keeps an eye on the competition while waiting for their turn. This relatively young program hopes to find success this season after training and improving their putts and strokes.

ABOVE Chelsea Simmons attempts to line up the ball with the hole. Finishing in the top 10, Simmons led the team during the SHSU Invitational. Women's golf had its best finish in the program's history during this tournament.

RIGHT Sara Jones swings for a long drive. Jones finished 42nd at the Payne Steward Memorial Invitational and 69th at the Bob Hurley Auto ORU Shootout.

FAR RIGHT Aliece Anderson chips her way out of the bunker in the Missouri State tournament. Anderson led SFA into a top-ten finish at the Missouri State/Payne Stewart Memorial Invitational, earning a score of 228 strokes.

"We know we are young, but we also know that we have the talent to compete in our conference as long as we stick to our goals and stay dedicated."

No more excuses for Ladyjack Golf

Team members agree that through hard work, dedication, chemistry, talent being put on the map as a competitor is possible.

THREE YEARS AGO the Ladyjack Golf team got its program underway, and after a rough first two years, the Ladyjacks are ready to make some noise in the Southland Conference.

Stefanie Maynard, women's golf coach, believes the team's success this year will first have to count on teamwork.

"The girls need to play more as a team this year. They need to encourage and build each other up," Maynard said. "I also expect them to eliminate their mistakes on the course and to work harder than they ever have before.

The team is made up of six girls, four sophomores and two juniors. The first two years the Ladyjacks were just trying to establish themselves in the Southland Conference and learn how to compete at this level, but this year they are ready to bring new attitudes to the course.

"Our goals are to average 315 as a team score this season, which is 10 shots lower than last season, improve our ball striking and average 30 putts per round, which is two lower than last year," Maynard said. "The way we will reach these goals will be by working harder on our wedges and by thinking better on the golf course."

"We have really good expectations for this year due to our team chemistry. Our main goals are to win a tournament and place in the top half of the conference tournament. We are hoping to reach these goals by dedication, hard work and competitive attitudes," sophomore Sara Jones said.

The golf season is a combination of both the Fall and Spring semesters with the conference tournament happening at the end of the spring semester. The winner of the conference tournament advanced to regionals, and then on to nationals. There is another way to qualify for regionals, and that is to be one of the top 70 teams in the nation at the end of the year, which is a difficult task to accomplish.

"We are hoping by to be averaging a 310 team score by conference, and we think that will be good enough to get us to our goal of finishing top half," Maynard said. "We can get there by dedicating ourselves to concentrating more in practice and doing everything with diligence. If we do that, I predict we will reach our 310 goal, finish in the top five at three times in tournaments and get our conference finish that we want," Maynard said.

Having a brand new program at this level makes it very hard to compete at the level of the other teams in the Southland Conference who have all had their programs for years. With this being said the Ladyjacks feel that they are ready to lose the "brand new program" excuse and compete in this conference.

"Our goals will be tough to reach but we believe that our hard work will pay off, and maybe we could even surpass our goals that we have made," Jones said. "Last year our ball striking and short game really held us back from competing, but once we improve those, we don't think that we will have any problem competing in any tournaments."

More than just fun and games

Fraternities, sororities, organizations, friends 'let loose and have fun' in more than 20 intramural sports for atmosphere, camaraderie, break from studying.

SFA'S WIDE VARIETY of intramural sports keeps students coming back for more. Sophomore Camille Turner did just that. Turner played everything from sand volleyball to flag football as a GKO representative. Out of the several teams and sports, she singles out one special memory as her favorite.

"It was indoor volleyball. The ball was coming over the net and headed for the ground," Turner said. "I dove for it and used one hand and hit it over the net."

Students competed against each other for various reasons. Some enjoyed the competitive atmosphere, similar to playing sports in high school, while others simply enjoyed the camaraderie associated with playing with fraternity brothers or representing an organization. Even people looking for something fun and random to do could sign on as a free agent to be placed with a team that needed more players. No matter what the reason, the athletes had safe fun.

Junior Amy Wright played in the one-day, free dodgeball tournament in the fall and enjoyed the break intramurals gave her from the semester.

"It's nice to see students letting loose and having fun," Wright said. "It's also a nice break from school and a fun way to work out."

Not only were there a variety of sports to choose from but also a variety of team sizes and costs throughout the intramural sports seasons. Some chose single or double sports ranging from daylong to weeklong events, the rest picked major leagues lasting up to a month.

Regardless, "no one cares if you win or lose, just as long as everyone has fun," said freshman Ray Yates. After being knocked out of the bracket in a tournament, Yates and his teammates from Traditions Council stayed to watch more action.

From a spectator's point of view, intramurals proved to serve some better than the others.

Senior Ashley Scott viewed a few sports, watching friends. She quickly found out, "it wasn't like purple haze; apparently there are rules," for what fans can and cannot do.

As clocks ran out of time and intramurals came to an end, many students were able to reflect upon their experiences and look forward to next semester when they could dive back into action.

Campus Recreational Center offers classes every semester to help students get in shape, de-stress.

THE CAMPUS REC Center is not only a place where students can workout; it's a place where fitness classes are offered for free to the students.

Some of the fitness programs that are offered at the rec center include Zumba, Dance Mania, Step-up, Kick, Punch, and Crunch, Yoga, and Lumberjack X-Fit, to name a few. According to Steve Dooling, fitness and wellness graduate assistant with SFA Campus Recreation, these fitness programs help students learn the basics of a fitness routine. "Students can also get away from the hustle and bustle and daily grind of school," Dooling says.

Fitness programs have been widely successful this year, according to Dooling. "The group exercise classes have been full for the most part, each class reaching around 20-30 people," said Dooling.

Dooling encourages students to come out to the rec not just because of the wide variety of fitness classes offered, but also because he believes the Rec Center is top notch.

Campus Recreation also offers a Climbing wall, an outdoor pool, outdoor basketball and volleyball courts, indoor basketball courts, racquetball areas, an indoor track, as well as a weight lifting area. Other services provided include personal training, massage therapy, a weight room orientation and special events such as Zumbafest, Women on Weights, and Cycle-Mania.

Outlet for the mind and body

Officers of Fencing Club work to gain interest, inspire others with their love for the mental sport of fencing.

A FENCING CLUB took shape in April of 2011. President and founder Julianna Calkins worked to gain interest, and most importantly to get the foils, or fencing swords, approved by the University Police Department. After putting up a few flyers, about 15 people joined their Facebook group, and even more people joined after an article ran in The Pine Log. For fencing swords to be approved on campus, Calkins had to fill out long paperwork and meet with Dr. Steve Westbrook, vice president of University affairs, "who not only approved the foils, but was very supportive of the club in general. It was an encouraging way to begin the club," she said.

Vice President Scott Nixon has also poured himself into the Fencing Club. He has competed in three National Championships tournaments and two Junior Olympics since beginning fencing in middle school. For Nixon, fencing was a competitive outlet as well as mental stimulation.

"It's different in the way that it's more a mental sport than a lot of the more popular sports," Nixon said. "You have to take into account multiple variables at once like tempo and distance while trying to guess in your head the next move your opponent will make. It's a great way to work your brain and body at the same time."

Nixon also believes fencing has benefits beyond the physical.

"Fencing is in a lot of ways the black tie affair of the sports world," Nixon said. "If you're around it long enough, you almost carry some of the respectfulness and manners back with you into society."

As for the future of the club, Calkins said she "would not mind traveling to compete with the other college teams in Texas." For now, she is fine with "taking things slowly… and simply providing an opportunity."

As for Nixon, he just hopes the club will continue to be a fun place.

"I think it will always be a way for students to forget about all that's going on in their daily lives and focus on something they can enjoy," Nixon said.

Ladyjacks axe down Horned Frogs

After seven meetings, Ladyjack Soccer finally beats TCU Horned Frogs 3-2 for first time in rivalry's history.

IN MID-SEPTEMBER, THE Ladyjack Soccer team took the field at the SFA Soccer Complex and made history by beating the TCU Horned Frogs for the first time in the schools' seven-year rivalry.

In one of the season's most intense, heated battles, the Ladyjacks won 3-2, making the 149th win in the school's history.

"We dealt with a lot of momentum swings tonight, and I couldn't be prouder of the team," said SFA head coach Tony Amato. "This is the type of win that gives us a lot of confidence going forward."

Junior Becky Johnson was the first to put an SFA goal on the scoreboard in the 21st minute of the game. The first goal of the game was Johnson's second goal of the season. Less than one minute later, junior Breanne Vernon scored off a deflection that slipped right past the TCU keeper.

The Ladyjacks took the 2-0 led proudly into halftime, but before they knew it, TCU came back more aggressively than was expected for the second half.

After taking the field for the second half, TCU scored its first goal in the 51st minute, putting the score at 2-1.
When a handball call was called against an SFA defender inside the SFA box, a penalty kick resulted, but that didn't stop the Ladyjacks. Sophomore Lacey Lee, who was the Southland Conference Goalkeeper of the Week, made the save of the season and created the turning point of the game. Lee made the perfect dive to make the save, keeping the score at 2-1.

After an intense battle at the SFA box, in the 72nd minute of the game, junior midfielder Laura Sadler scored her second goal of the season, the 14th of her career and what turned out to be the game-winning goal for SFA, putting SFA ahead 3-1.

Close to 10 minutes later, TCU scored its last goal of the game, but the Ladyjack defense didn't allow any more opportunities for the final minutes.

ROTC changes students' lives

In the ROTC program, students learn confidence and determination, in order to excel in military, school, life.

WHEN MEETING JEREMY Workman, it is impossible to not notice his confidence and determination. Both of these aspects he seems to have picked up from ROTC.

Workman, along with four other seniors, will be recruited into the military after they graduate this year, and he couldn't be more excited.

"I love the military aspect of things; discipline, and the way it builds leadership, is important to me," he said

Workman already has his job all lined up and has been given the placement of armored platoon leader. He will be in charge of four tanks and 16 men.

Yet, his responsibility of being a leader doesn't just begin after college. For this year he is the company commander of the SFA ROTC organization, which means he is a leader over all the students in the ROTC. With the help of the seniors, it is his duty to help the sophomores and juniors get ready to compete in the Annual Ranger Challenge.

Captain Steven Sanchez, who took the reins of the SFA ROTC program in August, describes this tournament as "a weekend long event in which two of our coed teams compete against big schools like University of Texas and Texas Christian University."

These teams participate in the following trials: a six-mile march, physical fitness, land navigation, obstacle course, a written exam on field manuals and patrolling, weapons assembling, and rope bridge crossing.

The Ranger Challenge, which took place in San Antonio this year, proved the SFA ROTC teams victorious, with one team taking second place all around and another taking fourth. When asked what Workman liked about the Ranger Challenge, he responded, "the pride and ownership you get from it is exhilarating."

The reputation of the SFA ROTC program is the very reason Workman decided to attend Stephen F. Austin in the first place. When he graduated from high school in 2008, he says, "I was going to enlist right away, but after some thought and talking with my parents, I decided to go to college, so when I heard about SFA's ROTC department, along with its size and closeness to my home (Houston), I decided to attend."

Since then, everyday life for Workman has included waking up at 5 in the morning, running miles, physical training, muscle endurance and practical military exercises.

Yet, with all this work, Workman is convinced, comes leadership skills, organization and pride. Other benefits Workman enjoys are a scholarship that helps pay for tuition and books as well as a stipend, which is a weekly paycheck from the ROTC. With a paycheck, a scholarship for college and a solid job after school, Workman believes that it pays off to be in the ROTC.

Climbing to center of attention

Rock climbing wall becoming a bigger attraction to those in need of overcoming fears, full-body workout.

SFA HOUSES A multi-million-dollar student recreation center which includes outdoor sand volleyball courts, a full-sized indoor basketball court, a two-level workout facility with weight training and cardio machines and a swimming pool surrounded by a lazy-river. However, the 34-foot-tall rock-climbing wall might just be its most popular attraction.

The wall is almost the height of three and a half basketball goals. This $250,000 fixture was built in the nearby faculty parking lot before it was moved into the Student Recreation Center.

The wall is actually many sections put together, rather than just one large, heavy single piece. This allows for mobility of the wall if ever needed.

Rec Center and has participated in rock-climbing events as a member of the SFA Rock Climbing Club. According to Sparacio, SFA has yet to develop a rock-climbing team, like many other Texas schools, due to the lack of returning rock-climbing students each semester.

"Because I help set up the wall for competition here at SFA, I'm not allowed to participate in the events here," he said. "However I do compete in events at other colleges and universities."

Sparacio has competed at Texas A&M, Texas Tech, Baylor, SMU and Houston community colleges just to name a few. He won the individual competition at Texas A&M Commerce, as well as placing no lower than fifth place at most rock-climbing events in which he takes part.

The wall at SFA stays busy. With operating hours from 4 to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 2 to 7 p.m. Friday and Sunday, students and faculty who are interested in rock-climbing must work with the schedule that is available.

"The wall is closed on Saturdays because we just don't have the student interest on Saturday to keep the wall open," Sparacio said. "Saturday seems to be a day of rest or spending time with family and friends here in Nacogdoches. Many of our attractions are only open for a short period, if at all, on Saturday. Maybe with more interest in the sport, the Rec Center would consider adjusting the hours."

Students must sign in at the desk by the wall in order to check out the equipment needed for rock climbing. If a student has never climbed before, he or she must attend a 30- to 45-minute training session. This prepares the student for rock climbing responsibilities, as well as provides confidence while participating in the sport.

Sparacio feels that people who have never done rock climbing should not be afraid to give it a try.

"Many people are leery due to a fear of heights," he said. "But I've noticed on many occasions that someone will get about halfway up then decide to keep going. Others afraid of heights will just go a little higher each time. "

With all the equipment at the Rec Center, students have various ways to get a complete workout from neck to heel. The wall, however, just might be the best full-body workout available.

"Many people think that rock climbing is all about upper body strength," Sparacio said. "It's really more lower body and core strength that helps; however if someone comes in to rock climb, they won't necessarily need to do anything else. It really is the best workout here. People are usually more sore from rock climbing than any other exercise that we have available."

Pattillos named Citizens of the Year

'Tremendous amount of loyalty' pays off after 45 years of service, dedication to SFA, city of Nacogdoches.

DR. BAKER PATTILLO, president of SFA, and wife Dr. Janice Pattillo, recently retired SFA education professor, were named Citizens of the Year at the Nacogdoches Chamber of Commerce's 90th Annual Membership Meeting and Banquet held in late September.

According to Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Bruce Partain, both Pattillos were deserving of the award.

"They've shown a tremendous amount of loyalty to their institution," Partain said. "They've shown a lot of competence, and they've shown a lot of results. I think the Pattillos, both Dr. Janice Pattillo and Dr. Baker Pattillo, are prime examples of that."

Upon receiving the award, Baker Pattillo accepted the honor on behalf of the SFA faculty and staff.

"Janice and I are thankful that the Chamber of Commerce considers us good citizens of Nacogdoches, but we are not the outstanding citizens of Nacogdoches," he said, "so we accept this award on behalf of the 1,630 faculty and staff members of SFA, because they are truly the individuals that throughout the year make Nacogdoches the great community it is today."

Throughout their marriage, the Pattillos have been greatly involved in each other's careers.

"I'm very proud we received (the award) as a couple, because we're a team, a partnership," /he said. "We will have been married 45 years this coming December. We have pretty well done everything together."

Dr. Janice Pattillo was the first kindergarten teacher in Nacogdoches, she taught at SFA 42 years before retiring in 2011, and recently the Board of Regents voted to name the Early Childhood Research Center after her.

Dr. Baker Pattillo has been working at SFA for 45 years, in positions inluding vice president of University affairs and his currect position as university president.

Feye represents student body voice

Board of Regents, Student Regent work together to serve student body, University as a whole on opinions that best suit everyone.

THE SFA BOARD OF REGENTS is an entity that helps to govern the University in the best way that it sees fit. Representing the voice of the study body on that board is the current Student Regent, Sarah Feye. She is a senior food, nutrition and dietetics major with a combined sciences minor.

According to Feye, "Student Regents serve a unique role (at the University.)" She attends four board meetings a year and will serve a one-year term. Although she does not have voting rights, she voices the students' opinions during meetings. Feye believes her opinion is valued by the board because she is a student. Since their business in meetings can affect the student body, she has the ability to speak for everyone and tries to stand up for the students and the University as a whole.

Because of the importance of this position, it cannot be awarded to just anyone; there is a long and thorough application process that includes an application review from the Student Government Association. Those applications then go to Dr. Baker Pattillo, SFA president, and he chooses his top applicants, who then have a telephone interview with Gov. Rick Perry. Feye said she turned in her application in November and heard she received the position at the end of April. Qualifications for being a Student Regent include being professional and well rounded. Feye feels that one of her strengths is that she holds leadership positions in various organizations, including vice president of Student Government Association, vice president of Phi Upsilon Omicron, second year student instructor for the Freshman Leadership Academy SFA 101 class and serving a second term as president of the Student Dietetics Association. "Becoming Student Regent was the next step in service for the student body," Feye said. "I hope to continue representing the students to the best of my ability in whichever way I can. It means a lot to me that I the ability to serve so many people at the University I love."

"Being Student Regent has given me an incredible learning opportunity. I hope to apply the professional skill set I'm learning to future jobs," said Feye. Feye plans to become a registered dietitian upon completion of her dietetic internship and graduate school.

New studio goes a long way

Fall ribbon-cutting opens doors on SFA-TV2's $200,000 'spectacular' renovation. New equipment, new opportunities ahead for broadcasting students.

ON SEPT. 22, the new SFA-TV2 studio and set were revealed at the official open house and ribbon cutting in the Boynton Building.

The last renovation on the studio had been done in 1990. The new studio had been undergoing renovations since 2010 and is now in use by SFA broadcasting students.

"We want to look compatible to many professional operations," Dr. Al Greule, associate professor, said. "We want to not only train students, but recruit good students to our program."

The renovations cost about $200,000, and SFA plans to spend about $200,000 more this year to make the studio as up-to-date as possible.

"The renovations will benefit students a lot in acquiring the experience they need to get a job," radio/TV major Angel Isaac Ramirez said. "They will have the knowledge and the experience needed."

The sets, which were designed by SFA Assistant Professor of Theatre Dana Gleoge, were built to give the studio a more contemporary look.

"I think the renovations are excellent," Ramirez said, "especially when you walk by the studio windows every day and witness the exciting changes. I know a lot of work was put into it and the results are spectacular."

Along with the newly designed studio, new equipment has been brought in, including a new television switcher.

"We bought the old switcher 20 years ago," Greule said. "After 10 years it started becoming dated, and about two years ago it started having problems that could no longer be supported. Now we have one that does everything that any major market television switcher can do."

The new changes to the studio give students the opportunity to get the knowledge they need.

"Over the last three or more years we've made upgrades to other media programs like photography, web design, and journalism," Gruele said. "It was time for TV to do its thing."

Marketing students 'save lives'

SFA's American Marketing Association student chapter holds annual AMA week, promotes pet adoption, hosts resume workshops, informs campus about organ donation.

THE AMERICAN MARKETING Association hosted a celebration Oct. 2-6 with the goal of bringing awareness to AMA, offering strong career opportunities for students and involking community involvement.

The week began on Sunday at PetSense, where information about adopting pets was given. On Monday Dr. Larry O'Neal, associate professor of marketing, offered a résumé writing workshop providing students with tips on polishing their résumé. Tuesday outside the business building, AMA students gave information on the importance of organ donation in support of AMA's national motto: "AMA Saves Lives." To end the week, AMA members and faculty hosted a social at Bullritos.

According to AMA adviser and marketing professor Dr. Marlene Kahla, the organization is an excellent professional student group and provides the student chapter with significant opportunities in the form of student competitions and leader resources. Kahla said involvement in the organization prepares students for future careers and offers tangible experience beyond the classroom.

The student chapter of AMA also provides a membership drive, grants and job openings posted frequently on the official website.

University hosts career fair

Students get head start in job fields, internships, graduate schools with networking and interviews.

CAREER SERVICES HOSTED its Fall Career Expo open to all SFA students, including freshmen through graduate students.

According to Jenny Davis, assistant director of career services, freshmen benefit because they get a feel for a large-scale collegiate career expo atmosphere. She also said sophomores and juniors benefited from the opportunity to meet with recruiters and land internships.

"Seniors, of course, should attend to find that full-time job upon graduation," Davis said.

The expo included more than 50 representatives of companies, ranging from the Austin Police Department to Sherwin-Williams. Representatives from multiple universities were also in attendance to promote graduate school programs.

Prior to the expo, career services offered a "How to Navigate a Career Fair" workshop to help students avoid common pitfalls encountered at career expos.

"Students shouldn't show up in jeans, carry a bulky backpack, have their cell phone on or look like a deer in the headlights," Davis said.

BELOW Students supporting KSAU 90.1 sort through free CD's in honor of National College Radio Day.

College Radio Day nationwide success

KSAU 90.1 FM staff joins forces with more than 300 university radio stations to celebrate contributions of college radio.

SFA'S RADIO STATION, KSAU 90.1FM, broadcast live from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the student center plaza Tuesday, Oct. 11, to mark National College Radio Day.

KSAU staff members produced the live broadcast and gave out free CDs to help SFA students be more aware of their campus station.

Sherry Williford, KSAU adviser and assistant professor of global media/radio-TV, said the purpose of College Radio Day is to harness the combined listenership of hundreds of thousands of college radio listeners throughout North America and to celebrate the important contribution of college radio to America's airwaves by uniting for this one day.

The observation aimed to raise a greater national awareness of the many college radio stations that operate throughout North America by encouraging people who would not normally listen to college radio to do so on that day.

"We hope that people who do tune in like what they hear and become regular listeners," Williford said.

KSAU is a 3,500-watt station that broadcasts from a studio in the Boynton Building on 90.1 FM in Nacogdoches. The student-produced station offers a wide variety of music and talk shows and is active in promoting community events such as the Empty Stocking Fund, Texas Blueberry Festival and Scare on the Square.

The alternative station plays various genres of music from 10 to 2 a.m. It gives students the opportunity to work as on-air disc jockeys, news reporters, sports reporters, production and promotion assistants and talent for various remotes throughout each season.

"University radio stations, and specifically KSAU, serve as a valuable learning environment for students," said John Allen Hendricks, chair of global media and contemporary culture.

He said university radio stations provide students with fond memories of their college days.

"Alumni always want to visit the college radio station during Homecoming as their experience as a DJ conjures up vivid memories of a lot of fun playing great music from their generation while learning at the same time," Hendricks said.

KSAU is managed professionally by Williford as faculty adviser/general manager, a graduate assistant serving as station manager and several other student managers. The entire on-air staff is composed of radio/TV majors enrolled in MCM 319, the communication practicum class.

Williford said the organizers of College Radio Day believe that college radio is one of the last remaining bastions of creative radio programming, free from the constrictions of having to be commercially viable and a place where those involved in its programming believe passionately in its mission.

According to the website for the event, "College radio is the only free live medium brave enough to play unsigned, local, and independent artists on a regular basis. Indeed, many famous and successful bands today owe their initial break to being played on college radio. Put simply, college radio is an important part of the North American media landscape because of its unique and fearless programming."

New research center facilitates research

STEM Research and Learning Center catalyzes scientific, interdisciplinary research. Pressing demand for technologically advanced workforce being met.

THE MISSION OF the Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Research and Learning Center is two-fold. It will facilitate the increase of research capacity within the STEM disciplines and between STEM and non-STEM fields. The center also will consolidate SFA's support for STEM education, particularly by coordinating STEM efforts in EC-12, undergraduate and graduate education, and teacher development at all levels.

Interdisciplinary research is a prime focus at SFA. The STEM Center will catalyze research communication and collaboration within the sciences as well as between the sciences and other disciplines. Particular attention will be given to facilitating research collaboration in partnership with industry, university faculty, staff and students, and stakeholders in the public school system.

Supporting comprehensive STEM education involves both publicizing the value of STEM training and removing barriers to student persistence in the STEM pipeline. In keeping with research findings regarding inhibitors to STEM engagement, the Center will focus on:

- Increasing STEM awareness and public perception
- Facilitating innovation in STEM university education
- Providing support for student mentoring during transitional periods in their education
- Guiding STEM teacher induction during the first three years in the classroom
- Empowering STEM teacher-leaders to transform their districts from within.

These endeavors will directly address the pressing demand for a technologically advanced workforce by increasing STEM knowledge, capacity and expertise.

Performers join "New" Original Cast

Eleven dynamic entertainers perform during Lumberjack Bash in hopes of creating their own new identity

AT THE BEGINNING of the semester SFA students tried out for the "New" Original Cast, the theatre department's musical cabaret troupe. This year the cast was composed entirely of theatre students, however it is not a requirement to be a theatre student to try out. According to Dr. Jason Scott, director, "At callbacks, we put them together in groups and had them improvise scenes together, so at that point we were looking for good team players and collaborators who weren't afraid of being spontaneous and having fun."

He said the group had a collaborative staff that helped in this effort. "For the first half of the semester, we had a single stage manager (Marcos Rodriguez,) sound designer (Stephanie Thompson) and lighting designer (Jason Monmaney.) Our piano accompanist was Keith LaLonde from the music department. For our Christmas show, we added two assistant stage managers (Eva Munden and Molly Dyer) and two costume designers (Delia Owens and Valarie McLeckie). We rehearse for two hours every Tuesday through Thursday, and have added some Monday rehearsals as well." He said rehearsals are dedicated to increasing skills in music performance, and Toni Smith, outstanding singer and vocal coach, is instrumental in this regard. Rehearsals also help troupe members explore the characters and scenarios through extended use of improvisation and theatre games. "While I 'write' the scripts," Scptt said, "I'm drawing most of my ideas from the cast members in terms of inspiration, ideas, characters and relationships, so it is truly a collaborative effort."

This year's "New" Original Cast production was "A Real Hometown Christmas Spectacle," a musical comedy that celebrated families, home towns and the unexpected quirks that make the holidays special and unique. The story was that of an All-American town preparing for the annual holiday festival. Two very different families compete to put on the big pageant of the season, resulting in a lot of conflict and chaos, and near catastrophe that is only resolved by a Christmas miracle.

The 11 members of the cast were returning Original Cast vets Jonathan Garza, Cynthia Law, Kory Pullam and Corinne Shady. The new members were Jennifer Bush, George Crispin, Lamar Jefferson, Benn May, Jennifer Suter, Samantha Walker and Kyla Williams.

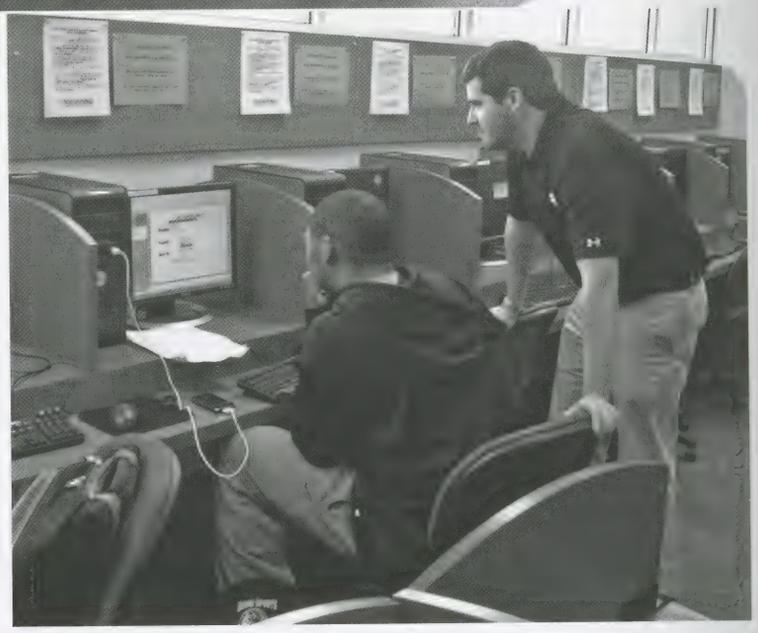
ABOVE Rob McDermand works to to keep student athletes in the academic "safe zone." McDermand was added as part of the SFA staff in July 2011 and has helped students succeed in classes. He was considered for the position in large part because of his experience in the Southland Conference.

RIGHT McDermand helps Lumberjack Basketball center Jereal Scott with assignments. Student athletes' schedules are demanding, and McDermand's job is to help them stay on top of their studies.



Student athletes excel in academics

Rob McDermand, personal tutor for student athletes, helps students remain in good academic standing.

THE SOUTHLAND CONFERENCE Commissioner's Honor Roll has recognized one-third of SFA athletes for their academic achievements. For the past 10 years, SFA student athletes have been honored for attaining a 3.0 or higher GPA.

Rob McDermand, academic student services director, helps these athletes with every avenue possible to become successful.

"My job is best served if I can help each student reach their potential," McDermand said.

He assists students with advising, transitioning into college, mentoring, academic progress and tutoring. He mentors high school students weekly who are in the process of transitioning into college as an athlete. This mentoring program is exclusively done with his full time staff members who make sure students are caught up on assignments.

The academic center, located in the academic wing behind the fieldhouse, provides a study lab and computers for students to have structured study time. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. There is an in-house staff of 20 tutors who help athletes at all hours of the day including weekends.

"We try to provide students with tutors and any help that meets their schedules as opposed to the AARC that fills up quickly and doesn't have tutors available all day," McDermand said.

Student athletes balance 15 to 18 credit hours per semester in order to maintain their goals toward a degree. They balance practice, travel, classes and social life. McDermand feels student athletes' schedules are misunderstood. He thinks that many people have a perception that athlete's academic schedules are lighter, but in reality their schedules are busier, and the course work is the same as any other student's work.

"It is very difficult to schedule a student athlete's academic life around their athletics," McDermand said.

Academic advising comes with the task of making sure athletes maintain an accurate progress towards graduation and making sure to follow all NCAA rules, which can become complicated if athletes change their major during their third year. Academic advising also includes making sure athletes' class schedules and practice schedules are not the same, making sure students can miss class due to games and making sure professors won't mind their students being absent occasionally during the season for away games.

McDermand advises each athlete to make sure they maintain over a 2.0 GPA and make sure they are passing all of their classes at all times.

SFA student athletes are recognized each semester and announced during football and basketball games for making the President's List, Dean's List, Academics Honor Roll and Southland Conference Commissioner's Honor Roll.

Students get hands-on experience

Advanced photography students given opportunity to put classroom instruction into practice, capturing African American history exhibit at Stone Fort Museum

A CLASS OF advanced photography students had the opportunity to practice professional skills by photographing an exhibit at the Stone Fort Museum in the spring.

"Cornerstones of the Community: African American History in Eastern Texas," showcases five years of research and effort gathering information concerning the African American community in Nacogdoches prior to 1900. Artifacts, collections and identifying objects such as quilts and tools are showcased throughout the museum.

The exhibit is designed to further visitors' understanding of African American roles in the development of the East Texas region by exemplifying the universal desire for freedom, faith and family.

The presentation comprises digital images and panoramic views of each room containing exhibit installations. Displayed on a large flat-screen TV located in the entry room of the museum, the visual presentation is about five minutes long and provides a virtual tour of each room.

A notebook containing detailed written descriptions is also provided, giving museum visitors access to the same information available for viewing on the second floor.

Carolyn Spears, museum director, said the presentation helped present the exhibit in a new way.

"The students' contributions have provided me, for the first time, with panoramic images that present each room as a whole unit," Spears said, adding she is pleased the museum helped provide students experience in their fields of study.

"We really have a lot of things we need to accomplish," Spears said. "To do that takes time, energy and talent. Our students are a great fit for that."

The project allowed the students a break from typical classroom instruction, as the assignment took about four class meetings to complete.

Josh Hart, a senior photojournalism major, was one of the students who photographed the various rooms of the exhibit.

"It was a great experience," Hart said. "It helped us grow professionally as students because we were working with a real deadline. It was different from anything we'd done before."

Greg Patterson, instructor of the participating photography class and lecturer in the SFA Department of Mass Communication, said he was pleased to lead his students in a new direction of learning.

"It's great for our students to realize that the skills they have are important and can add value to other people's lives," Patterson said. "This project allowed them to use their skills for a great purpose outside the classroom."

BELOW Kelly works behind the camera on his project. As students progress through the program, they are gradually allowed more access to advanced technology.

Behind the scenes

Cinematography program focuses on hard work, collaboration as students work toward a hands-on profession.

CINEMATOGRAPHY IS NOT a well-known major at many schools. However, the SFA cinematography program's reputation has gained momentum in the past year.

Cinematography is a field where art, technology, writing and creativity play into one. The program has about 40 undergraduates and 40 graduate students. The program teaches movie-making, but it is more than just working with a video camera.

Professor William Arscott has dedicated 49 years to SFA and the cinematography program, and he constantly challenges students to think outside of the box.

"I'm long past retirement, but I love teaching," Arscott said. "My favorite part of this profession is the students."

Students in the program are grouped according to their levels of experience. Generally, students start their freshmen year in the beginner-level classes and advance to the upper-level classes. Once in the upper-level classes, students work with other students at different skill levels, therefore learning from each other.

With such a collaborative focus, students not only have to work hard, they must have thick skin. They are constantly making films in groups, and their work may get criticized by other students and professors.

Every summer, the cinematography program starts a year-long process of making a feature film, and the following summer it is presented. Students write the scripts, direct the film and get involved with the other art programs to compose some of the music used.

The cinematography program has successfully developed students into not only movie makers, but also into actors, writers and well-educated adults. They learn that deadlines are important in the world of film, and they learn that not everything they do will be the greatest. However, they know that if they do the best they can and enjoy what they do, that is all that matters.

"Money is not important," Arscott said. "It's happiness that matters most. Do not choose a profession that does not make you happy. It's your life. You need to do what you want."

Cinematography is an art, it is a collaborative field and it teaches students the value of hard work. Stephen F. Austin has supported this program for more than 40 years and continues to do so by helping out in any way possible.

THE SFA MEN'S Choir is a volunteer ensemble open to any male student.

It was formed for a graduate recital in 2009. Since then, the ensemble has been directed by graduate conducting students, including Jake Taylor and Brian Miller in the 2011-2012 season.

The ensemble performs styles such as barbershop, African and an opera chorus. The group has shown steady growth during its three years, with a total of 30 members in the fall of 2011. The group only meets in the fall and presents an annual concert late in the fall semester at the Cole Concert Hall on campus.

Many in the choir consider it an outlet for musicians on campus. Other choral ensembles connected with the School of Music are actual classes, where men's choir is not. This opens up the possibilities for membership.

In the fall, the ensemble had members ranging from graduate opera students to kinesiology majors and everything in between.

Things not seen

World-renowned photographer Frank Dituri's exhibit presented as part of School of Fine Arts' annual University Series.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY INTERNATIONALLY acclaimed artist Frank Dituri were included in an exhibition held by the SFA School of Fine Arts in February.

Dituri's exhibit "Of Things Not Seen" was featured in the Griffith Gallery on campus.

"In his evocative photographs, Dituri presents glimpses of ordinary reality as evidence of things not actually seen," explained David A. Lewis, professor of art history and curator of the exhibition. "Full of mystery, power and fascination, the images capture moments of epiphany. They are hauntingly beautiful."

Dituri's work has been exhibited worldwide, and his images have been reviewed and published in many prestigious international publications. He currently teaches at the Libera Academia de Belle Arti in Florence, Italy.

The exhibition, which is a part of the College of Fine Arts' University Series, ran through Friday, March 9. It was part of a joint exhibition presented by the College of Fine Arts and the School of Art, and it was sponsored by the SFA Friends of the Visual Arts and the Nacogdoches Junior Forum.

Make a wish

Chi Omega grants wishes, bonds with sisters during annual Wish Week fundraiser.

CHI OMEGA HELD its annual Wish Week fundraiser for their offical philanthropy, the Make-a-Wish Foundation. The sorority raised money for the foundation with several events including a wishing well on campus, a benefit night at Frank Nac and a Chili Cook-off in November.

The sorority is committed to community service as one of the organization's founding principles. After a week of fundraising, several sisters went to the chapter's Make-a-Wish headquarters in Houston to deliver their donation.

"It was awesome, we got to see pictures of all the kids receiving their wishes," Kristin Shoop said. "It was really humbling. It makes you realize what's truly important in life. To be able to make a difference in those families memories, it's just incredible."

Philanthropy is an integral part of Greek life at SFA. Sororities and fraternities are expected to serve within their community and on campus. It provides not only an opportunity to make a difference, but gives sisters and brothers an opportunity to grow closer.

"This was my first semester in Chi Omega," Regan Bates said, "and to work together with my sisters, it made me feel more connected to them and it warmed my heart."

Chi Omega's commitment to the Make-a-Wish Foundation has remained strong since its inception in 2002. To date, the national Chi Omega chapter has raised over $5.6 million and has helped to grant more than 760 wishes.

The 'steps' into Greek life

Greek members gather in front of the Austin Building to witness the traditional event of IFC's last day of rush week.

TRADITIONS AT SFA come in all sizes and shapes. Interfraternity Council (IFC) formal rush and Steps are two of the main events of the beginning of the semester.

"Rush is a great way for new students to meet new people and to network to better themselves and their families," Scott Bronson, president of the Phi Kappa Psi chapter, said.

Steps is the time where Potential New Members show off which fraternity they have decided to join at the end of formal rush. On Saturday, Sept. 3, Fall Steps, with 98 PNMs jumping, was once again a huge success.

IFC Formal Rush began the first week of school and allowed students who wanted to rush a chance to see the diversity SFA has to offer in its Greek community. Formal rush starts out with a meet-and-greet with all the chapters of IFC. This gives potential new members a chance to finally meet members of each chapter in the student center. The following night's event was hosted by IFC. This year's event was during the first Lumberjack football game against McMurray State. PNMs were allowed to visit each chapter and begin the process of deciding which chapter they want to join.

The final event before Steps was Lines, an event where a rushees is given two choices to attend a short meet-and-greet with the whole chapter. Out of these two chapters, the rushee chooses one to jump for at Steps.

Steps is the moment of truth for new members and the chapters. New members are lined up behind the Austin Building wearing a shirt from their chosen chapter with a white shirt over it. Every member, rush helper and alumni of each chapter lines up below the steps of the Austin Building, and the crowd waits to see who is going to jump for them.

As each new member walks out the front doors, his name and the chapter he is jumping for is called out for the crowd to hear. He then rips off the white shirt, revealing his selection to the crowd. As he runs down the steps to his new brothers, it is tradition that the active members throw him into the crowd.

After formal rush the new pledges enter into their pledgeship and learn about their new fraternity. All men who choose to rush must have at least a 2.5 GPA and a desire to meet and expand their horizons.

TKE responds to Texas wildfires

Area chapters work together to raise over $3,500 for East Texas wildfire relief efforts.

IN RESPONSE TO the massive damage caused by the wildfires in early September, members of Tau Kappa Epsilon (TKE) Fraternity and other organizations conducted a fundraiser to gather money to support those families who were directly affected by the fires. The fires stretched across the state of Texas burning about 30,000 acres and damaging over 1,500 homes in cities including Austin, Fort Hood and Bastrop.

This fundraiser was inspired by one of the TKE members whose family witnessed firsthand the damage of a fire in Bastrop. More than 600 homes were destroyed by the Bastrop fires, and many families were left without places to stay. Deaths, injuries and extensive damage resulted from all of these fires. These people needed a helping hand to get them back on their feet, and a relief fundraiser was just the way to help them.

The event took place at 7:30 a.m. Sept. 21 in a booth set up by Surfin' Steve. During the event, they collected monetary donations as they educated the students and staff on the severity of the recent wildfires. In charge of the event was Peyton Sykes, member of TKE fraternity.

After collecting all the donations from the fundraiser, the members of TKE counted the earnings and combined them with other groups who were also raising money for victims of the fires.

"Our organization collected about $1,750," Sykes said. "There are other chapters that are included in this project,and they have raised over $2,000."

The results from the fundraiser exceeded all expectations concerning the amount that was raised and the effort that was put forth. Support for this and many other fundraisers flowed in from all throughout the city and state as volunteers and different organizations lent a helping hand to those in need.

The mission of "Pink Out" month is to encourage awareness of breast cancer through a month of informative events, to raise funds for breast cancer awareness and to recognize local breast cancer survivors and those who have lost their battle with this disease. Since 1992, ZTA has supported breast cancer education and awareness initiatives. Throughout the year, but especially each October, Zetas across the country work hard to support the cause. The ZTA chapter at SFA joined with the other Zetas in the Houston area to bring breast cancer awareness to attendees at a Houston Texans football game.

At the game, Texans football players, coaches and referees wore pink wristbands, gloves, hats and shoes that were auctioned off on the NFL auction website to support the cause with items collected from teams across the league. At the game the Zetas distributed approximately 30,000 pink ribbons and information cards to fans at Reliant Stadium.

Christina Lee, a junior kinesiology major, spoke about the events at the game. She said, "It was inspiring to spread awareness to that many people. I know there were at least 5,000 (people) that passed through my gate. It was amazing."

The national philanthropy of ZTA is the Zeta Tau Alpha Foundation, Inc. benefiting breast cancer education and awareness. ZTA began an association with The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation in 1992. ZTA provides the signature pink t-shirts and caps for participants to wear during Race for the Cure events across the nation. They also supply the pink "In Memory Of" and "In Celebration Of" back signs so participants may race in honor of a friend or a loved one.

Panhellenic welcomes new sisters

New sorority members take first steps into Greek life with fellow sisters. Legacies continue for another four years.

EVERY YEAR AT SFA, girls come together in sisterhood for the annual Panhellenic Council Bid Day. This year, 210 women were welcomed into the open arms of their sisters and to the start of pledgeship for the Fall 2011 Semester.

SFA Bid Day is the day where Potential New Members (PNM) come together after a three-day process and find out what sorority they will become a part of. As the girls find out what sorority they were accepted into, the joyful screams of the sisters echo across the room, and the girls run into the open arms of their new SFA Greek family.

According to the SFA Panhellenic website, girls must be enrolled for a minimum of 12 hours at SFA and cannot be on academic probation. In the recruitment process, girls spend three days going to events and functions so that they can get to know the girls in SFA sororities. It is recommended that the girls ask several questions to see what requirements they fit into for which sisterhood. Each day was a new way to get to know the girls who would soon become their sisters and give the PNMs a chance to meet as many people as they could from each sorority.

Jenni Howsman, a senior Delta Zeta, said, "As a graduating senior this semester, it was an amazing feeling to see that all of these girls running to us are going to be the future of Delta Zeta. They're an amazing group of women just beginning on their journey in Delta Zeta and in college. I wish them the best and hope they have an amazing four years like I did."

Greek life is a big part of some SFA students' college experience, and many girls find comfort in sisterhood during their first semester away from home. New sisters slowly become best friends and a lifetime family united under one set of letters.

From the moment they find out what sorority they're in to the moment they run into their sisters' open arms, Bid Day is an exciting part of a Panhellenic sorority sister's college experience.

Dinner of sophistication

Mu Sigma Upsilon aims to "embrace, not stigmatize," as they host second annual dinner in honor of community, campus leaders.

ON AN EVENING filled with sophistication and class, Mu Sigma Upsilon hosted a dinner to honor all women and acknowledge female leaders in the Nacogdoches community. Guests wore cocktail attire of little black dresses and shimmer and an intimate dinner of alfredo pasta, Italian mixed vegetables and chocolate cake was served.

The second annual dinner concluded the sorority's Mu Week. Formal invitations were sent to various community and campus female leaders, including SFA faculty members and leaders from multiple sororities and organizations.

Before dinner, guests mingled. Jessica Bermejo, district representative and secretary of Mu Sigma Upsilon, was hostess of the event.

After dessert was served, the floor was open for the younger women to offer their personal testimonies of how they overcame adversity to be leaders in their community. The older guests were present to offer the young ladies advice.

The owner of Hotel Fredonia, Susan Pack Reents, was the distinguished guest speaker. She gave an account of her personal success story of how she came to be the owner of the hotel in spite of adversity. Reents mentioned how she used her "gut feeling" to take the leap of faith and use a loan to buy the hotel in 2008 and maintain it up until now. With her story, she inspired the females in attendance to be strong women and chase success as she did.

As a sorority whose foundation lies in its diversity and female empowerment, Mu Sigma Upsilon was the first multi-cultural Greek group to be established in the United States. It was founded in 1981 in the state of New Jersey on the Rutgers University-New Brunswick campus. It thrives on embracing differences that add to one's uniqueness.

Taste of Latin America

Sigma Lambda Beta hosted their second annual "The Taste of Latin America" event in East College Cafeteria to allow students to experience, enjoy the culture, food of Latin America.

ATTENDEES AT THIS year's annual "Taste of Latin America" event learned about Latin American culture, dancing and food.

"The purpose of the event was for cultural awareness—to broaden what we see as far as different cultures on campus," said Fabian Hernandez, nursing senior and vice president and secretary of Sigma Lambda Beta.

Attendees were able to learn about the Latin American culture from information displayed on posters on the cafeteria walls, display boards on tables and "Did You Know?" fact cards, as well as Latin American maps. People were able to be enriched by the Latin American history as well as by their food dishes.

Hernandez said he "wanted to bring more of an exposure to different cultures around campus" as one of his goals for the event.

"When we look around at SFA we are very diverse," Hernandez said.

During the event, dinner guests were provided with the option of learning salsa dancing from instructors or just taking in the sights and sounds as they ate. Tables were set up to focus on the area of dancing.

Raul Davila, Katy senior and treasurer of Sigma Lambda Beta said the original idea for the event was going to be a Salsa Night.

"It was going to be dancing, kind of an instructional thing, and from there we just kept growing," he said.

Although "The Taste of Latin America" was hosted by the fraternity, groups such as The Spanish Club, the Office of International Programs, Office of Multicultural Affairs (OMA), and the Organization of Latin Americans (OLA) provided assistance to the event. They also invited anyone else who wanted to help out with the event while getting service hours.

"As a Greek organization we had a lot of participants and other Greeks showed up to the event. So, it was a good unity bonding experience as well," Hernandez said.

Aramark also played a big factor in the event, catering the food. Aramark staff also dressed up in the traditional attire. "They added to the event a whole bunch. They brought a lot to the atmosphere," Davila said.

Everyone who worked the event dressed up in either the traditional clothing or businesslike attire. Aramark staff dressed in ponchos and sombreros and danced as they served food. The workers who were part of "The Taste of Latin America" tried to execute an inviting and cultural environment.

"It's a different event," Davila said. " It's good to actually see there's something going on that you can go eat and have fun all at the same time."

Date auction benefits local charities

Fraternity, sorority team up for second annual Sweet Benefit. Dates auctioned off, donations made to Boys and Girls Club, GODTEL.

MEMBERS OF SIGMA Lambda Beta Fraternity, Inc. and Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. chose the Nacogdoches Boys and Girls Club and GODTEL as the two charities that would benfit from the organizations' annual date auction in the Baker Pattillo Student Center movie theatre.

"Being involved in the auction means giving to the cause," Sigma Lambda Beta member Raul Davila said. "This event would not have gone on if it wasn't for the people who signed up."

Volunteers were asked to sign up before the event and choose their own entrance music. The organizations also asked for volunteers to help organize, set up and assist with the benefit.

The bidding for each "date" began at $2. The date packages included gift cards to local restaurants such as Red Lobster, Olive Garden and Sonic.

According to Sigma Lambda Beta member Fabian Hernandez the auction is meant to help people get to know each other and give to charity at the same time.

"The outcome was wonderful," said Brittany King, member of Alpha Kappa Alpha. "We look forward to improving the event and want to thank everyone who came out."

The emcees of the benefit were Davila and Alpha Kappa Alpha member Chole Vallot. Their goal was to keep the audience laughing and make the volunteer dates comfortable on stage.

"I do believe that we will continue to host this event every February," Davila said.

Greeks showcase latest fashions

The fashion show concept promotes greek unity among the campus while having a philanthropic goal.

FOR THE SECOND year, Mu Sigma Upsilon Sorority, Inc. introduced its Greek Seasons Fashion Show in the Grand Ballroom. The fashion show displayed the diversity and unity of Greek organizations at SFA as members modeled apparel from each of the four seasons in their individual organization colors. Five-dollar tickets were sold and clothing donations were taken at the door to raise money for a women's shelter in the Nacogdoches community. The winners of the fashion show received a monetary prize and bragging rights.

As a part of the show, eight groups participated, including Fashion 'N' Motion and seven Greek organizations, Sigma Lambda Beta, Kappa Delta Chi, Zeta Tau Alpha, Delta Delta Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, Delta Zeta and Mu Sigma Upsilon.

Each group nominated two or three members to model two outfits per season, presenting a total of eight outfits. They were given a little over a month to rehearse and prepare for this event. Each model was allowed the opportunity to be creative with her outfits and props during the show. Some groups did back flips or skateboarded down the runway, while others walked alongside dogs or were dressed as Christmas presents.

The events in the fashion show began with a fall segment, followed by a holiday-inspired winter segment, and then a brief intermission where the dance team Infamous performed. After the intermission, the groups continued the show with a colorful spring segment and ended with a fun summer segment. After the groups modeled their last outfits, the judges were given time to come up with the winner as a walk off between audience members commenced on the stage with the hopes of winning a $25 gift card from Chili's.

Judging the fashion show was Beverly Farmer, director of student activities and Greek adviser, Jackie Polk, president of Fashion 'N' Motion organization, and Rebecca Greer, professor of fashion merchandising. Each of the Greek organizations could receive up to 50 points for each season they modeled, ending with a possible total of 200 points. The judges evaluated each member based on their confidence, runway walk and presentation. They also looked at the style and coordination of each outfit and the representation of their individual Greek colors. Each model's overall performance was evaluated as the judges were attentive to the model's attitude, use of props or accessories, their ability to lock the attention of the crowd and their display of the proper season. The final criteria the judges considered was the quality of each individual and how well they portrayed their organization in a positive light.

After the deliberation from the judges, there was a tie between Sigma Lambda Beta Fraternity and Alpha Chi Omega Sorority. To break this tie, models from each group has a walk-off and the let audience decide who should win it all. Each group strutted their stuff down the runway, and after a quick vote, the audience chose Alpha Chi Omega as the winners of the show.

Dancing for a cure

Dancers use talent to raise funds for cancer research, recognize the fighters, survivors.

COURTNEY VERNON TOOK a deep breath in and let it out. The hours upon hours she and the 13 other inaugural members of Dancers Against Cancer rehearsed would finally be put to the test. It was show night.

Vernon, a junior kinesiology major and president of the organization, set out to create Dancers Against Cancer about a month into the fall semester. "I formed Dancers Against Cancer because I wanted to be able to give back while still doing something I love," she said. "Dancers Against Cancer provides an opportunity for girls or guys at any level of dance to dance for a good cause."

Dancers Against Cancer is a nationwide organization created to raise funds for all types of cancer. After witnessing her friend's mother as well as a family friend die of cancer, Vernon knew she wanted to take action. "It wasn't a particular person that impacted my decision to start the organization," she said. "It was more cancer as a whole. Cancer affects so many people and is a life-changing event. Dancers Against Cancer is here to help them, to give them hope."

Members of Dancers Against Cancer rehearse within the Student Recreation Center's multi-purpose studio. Rehearsals last approximately two hours each week. "Practice starts with stretches, then technique and concludes with practicing and cleaning the dances," Vernon said. "We also try to get together weekly to focus solely on technique."

During the spring semester, dancers focused on learning lyrical, jazz, hip-hop and contemporary pieces. With that said, Vernon hopes to see more styles of dance represented in future years. In particular, she wants to see both kick and tap routines added to their repertoire. "Personally, my favorite style of dance is jazz," Vernon said. "I love to leap and learn new tricks. Jazz is usually a style filled with all of that."

On the night of the first show, approximately 50 people filed into the Shelton Gym, located in the Lucille Norton Health and Physical Education Complex. Normally full of screaming volleyball fans, the gym was taken over by a more refined audience of both family and friends there to support the dancers as well as to raise funds for the local breast cancer support group.

The show featured seven dances. Of the seven dances, one stood out to Vernon. It was the grand finale piece, danced to Demi Lovato's "Skyscraper." While Lovato originally created the song to address her struggle with an eating disorder, the lyrics can relate to a battle of any kind, including the battle with cancer. "This dance brought most of the audience to tears," Vernon said.

While this organization is still in its infancy, Vernon has big hopes for its future. "We raised approximately $400 our first semester," she said. "I hope we continue to grow and do bigger and better things as an organization in upcoming years."

The Order of the Lumberjack

SFA's Harry Potter Alliance uses its love of Harry Potter books to promote literacy within Nacogdoches community, globally.

THE ORDER OF the Lumberjack, a chapter of the Harry Potter Alliance, began this year with big hopes to raise levels of community service and activism. The chapter is both a service and interest organization with a lot of activities and opportunities for SFA students. The group proved to be very successful when it gained nearly 70 members within the first week and approximately 107 members by the end of September.

The organization serves many purposes, its top priority being to promote literacy. Because the group is still new to campus, the members have many plans to work with the community and campus. To help promote literacy, the organization plans on attending local elementary schools to read to children, as well as work with the public library to host book drives. The books donated will be sent to underprivileged countries around the world with the hope that more children and adults will have access to knowledge.

The chapter's first campaign project was called "Not in Harry's Name" and members of the organization wrote letters to Time Warner and Warner Bros. Studio. The letters were to promote fair trade chocolate and to stop the selling of children on cocoa farms in third world countries. It then branched off its second campaign by making a "howler" video, where they expressed their anger and their stances on the views of fair trade chocolate.

Not only does the group do community service, but they also have many social events. When the SAA showing of "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows - Part 2" came to the student center theater, the group hosted a very successful game night.

"I absolutely loved game night!" Freshman Samuel Burkholder said. "Pin the Nose on Voldemort proved to be the best game of the night. Everyone truly enjoyed themselves."

The group is all about spin-offs when it comes to relating aspects of their organization to the story itself. Each of the officers, Monica Gratsy, Erin Letry, Kristian Williams, and Jessica Hernandez, are the heads of houses and the president and adviser (Dr. Anne Smith) are considered the leaders of the organization, McGonnegal and Dumbledore.

Although the organization is new to campus, members keep their heads up and continue to make plans for the future. The group is hoping to join the residents of Wisely Hall, the honors hall, and make a Quidditch team and play life-size chess, which are considered top quality sports and entertainment in the Harry Potter stories.

Don't drive jack'd up

Driving Jacks provides free, nonjudgmental rides to keep the streets of Nacogdoches safe for students, community members.

SHE PROMISES HERSELF she is OK to drive after a few drinks at the bar, but as the sirens wail and an innocent life is fighting to survive, she is proven wrong as she sits handcuffed on the curb.

According to lifetips.com, approximately 16,000 people are killed in alcohol related crashes each year.

SFA's Driving Jacks provides a service by giving rides to intoxicated SFA students and local citizens in order to promote designated driving and save lives.

Driving Jacks began as a sub-committee of the Student Government Association (SGA). The idea for such a program was brought forth by one of SGA's members, Amy Shields.

According to Brett Bailey, senior Driving Jacks sponsor and public relations deputy, Shields had hoped to begin a "well established safe-ride" organization at SFA's campus much like an organization at Texas A&M called C.A.R.P.O.O.L. (Caring Aggies R Protecting Over Our Lives).

Shields began the first steps in creating the program, but money issues kept arising and setbacks were placed in the way of getting the program off the ground. Shields was still persistent in beginning the program though, according to Bailey.

Just a few weeks after Shields began pushing the organization, she was struck and killed by a drunk driver in October 2004 on Highway 59 North in the Nacogdoches area. After Shields' untimely death, her fellow SGA members became dedicated to researching and beginning a student-run program promoting the cause of designated driving, according to DrivingJacks.com.

Bailey said that since providing its first free ride on Jan. 25, 2007, Driving Jacks has given 13,218 rides.

"To see Amy's vision become a reality and know that I am a part of helping save lives is an inspiration to myself. It feels good to be a part of an organization that helps my classmates and friends and also keeps our streets safe," Bailey said.

"We have 120 members serving Driving Jacks now. Knowing there are good people in this world who dedicate their weekends and volunteer to help this cause has such a positive impact on me," Ford said. "When I wear my Driving Jacks shirt around town, being recognized in the community for being a part of this positive organization that is saving lives is rewarding to me and very humbling."

Each weekend, members of Driving Jacks go to different local "night spots" to offer rides to students. These members are called "Shields" in memory of the late Amy Shields, according to Bailey.

According to Marcus Johnson, senior recruitment and retention member, Driving Jacks has made him more sociable and helped him become a better leader when looking out for fellow students on campus.

"Driving Jacks is the best program to join as a freshman, especially if you do not know anyone else on campus. We are one big family, and I have loved every minute of being a part of such a great organization," Johnson added.

Literacy awareness

Members of Subplots share their love of literature with community members, young and old.

SUBPLOTS: FRIENDS OF Creative Writers is an organization dedicated to promoting the arts within Nacogdoches, supporting creative writers and helping the community.

Subplots is a supporter of local and national charities. Canned food and non perishable items were collected for the Women's Shelter in exchange for bookmarks on Halloween night. Subplots members Tyler Heath, Kayla Haas, Jessica Weatherford, Michelle Cook, Melanie Willingham, Chidinma Okani and Lauren Sullivan went to neighborhoods surrounding SFA to collect these goods by means of trick or treating.

"It was a lot of fun, and we were very successful," Weatherford said. "It was a great way to get involved with the community and help someone out along the way."

At the end of the night, Subplots had collected 61 cans of food. On the bookmarks exchanged were poems from the previous edition of Humid, SFA's undergraduate literary journal. Subplots saw this as an opportunity to bring the art of poetry to Nacogdoches residents.

"What people forget or don't realize is that there's good literary fiction that isn't known for boring people to death and good poetry with accessible language. I think Subplots is trying to get this message out there, with things like Poem-in-Your-Pocket Day and public Lit on the LA(w)N readings," said Zanne Tarlow, treasurer of Subplots.

In April, for National Poetry Month, Subplots handed out poems for Poem-in-Your-Pocket Day. These poems range from recognized poetry to student written poems. Subplots works to bring the works of others to the students of SFA. During Lit on the LA(w)N, students shared their own work, but also the works of others.

Tarlow says, "I hope this grows in the years to come. So much so that people don't just pass by, and eavesdrop for a bit. I want people to come looking for it."

Still a relatively young organization, Subplots hopes to continue to make a positive impact on the community and to help those with creative pursuits.

TOP The latest issues of "Real" are displayed outside of the student center. Real features fiction, nonfiction and poetry by writers from around the world. Students within the creative writing program read submissions and help produce this semiannual magazine.

LEFT Tyler Heath hands out poem pockets in front of the student center. Members of Subplots sponsored "Poem In Your Pocket Day" to celebrate National Poetry Month. Poems were given to students to read and share with others.

ABOVE RIGHT Tyler Heath carries cans collected over Halloween. Subplots members trick-or-treated for canned goods instead of candy. The cans were then given to a local women's shelter.

TOP Big Jacks gather at their Adopt-A-Highway site on FM 225. In search of more volunteer opportunities, Big Jacks decided to join the Adopt-A-Highway program in Fall 2010.

ABOVE LEFT Big Jacks and Little Jacks join the SFA Beep Baseball Team, the Blind Spots, for a game. Beep baseball uses a ball and two bases that beep. All players are required to be blindfolded.

BOTTOM Big Jacks and Little Jacks gather after a day at Ellen Trout Zoo. Before mentoring a child, Big Jacks attended a training session, which included information on how to handle injuries, situations of neglect, poor manners and a variety of other topics.

"I think Big Jacks makes a solid difference in a kid's life. It gives them one extra person to rely on and have a bond with."
- Matthew Gallagher

Impacting Nac Youth

Big Jacks mentor at-risk students to provide hope for a brighter future.

MEMBERS OF BIG Jacks can be seen around campus proudly wearing their blue t-shirts that read "Est. 2004" across the front. Students started the group immediately after Big Brothers Big Sisters left Nacogdoches Independent School District. The mentor program, reaching out to at-risk youth in NISD, continues to grow in membership each year.

To be a member, students must maintain a high GPA and be selected after an application and interview process. Once chosen, Big Jacks are paired up with Little Jacks with whom they stay with throughout their time at SFA. They get together after school for at least an hour every week to do a variety of activities with their Little Jack.

Matthew Gallagher, social work graduate student and president of Big Jacks, said the only thing holding them back is their budget. The majority of it goes toward a big activity each semester, like going to the zoo. They also hold monthly events for Jacks, both big and little, to do things like decorate Christmas cookies and roller skate. In the future they look to become a non-profit organization to allow corporate sponsorships.

Fifty-four students showed up to their spring interest meeting. Lola Akapo, political science junior and service coordinator of Big Jacks, said, "You used to need a GPA before you could become a member. Now first semester freshmen can still mentor on a semester-long probation—we're trying to cater to the students coming in." This opened up the doors for larger enrollment for both college students and youth.

Big Jacks picked their name back in 2004 by combining SFA's mascot with the program it is modeled after, Big Brothers Big Sisters. Akapo says their purpose is "to provide hope for kids because they don't get the little pleasures that others have the luxury of having. They see that someone cares, and it gives them a sense of purpose in life."

Gallagher said, "Maybe life has given them a bad hand so far, but they've got their whole future ahead of them and need something that makes them feel special."

And it's not all about kids learning from their mentors; the mentors do plenty of learning as well. Gallagher said, "It has enlightened me on more social problems existing in society and empowered me to really make a difference." He served his undergraduate practicum as a social worker within NISD. Through Big Jacks and his practicum he learned, "Nac has an unbelievable hidden amount of poverty," an issue Big Jacks is here to aid.

For the first time, we are sending out evaluations to parents, to know where we are and what we can do better, Gallagher said. Big Jacks strives to impact the lives of children, and often collegiate members find their lives changed by their experiences, too. Akapo said, "It has really made me more outspoken. I feel like I can do anything because I was able to get through to a 10-year-old boy."
